THE STAR ROUTE VERDICT.

Opinions of the Metropolitan Press Thereon—The "Times" Anxious for a Libel Suit.

HOW THE VERDICT WAS RECEIVED IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 15.—[Special.]—The verdict of the star route jury was a perfect surprise to everybody. Politicians had expected another disagreement, but the unanimous verdict of not guilty came so unexpectedly that but few knew what to say. Politicians generally want time to think it over before consenting to make any statement for publication. A prominent federal official said, "It is astonishing," but after a moment said: "I will tell you what I think will be the result," it will elect a democratic president."

WILL COMFORT AND ENCOURAGE THIEVES.

NEW YORK, June 15.—[Special.]—Times: "The verdict of the star route jury is one that will comfort and encourage all who think it is no sin to steal from the treasury of the United States. To the honest people of the nation the result is one unexpected and undesired; a grievous disappointment and a fresh revelation of the power of wealthy and unscrupulous graduates of the school of 'practical politics,' when confronted in the courts at Washington by proofs of their villainy."

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

NEW YORK, June 15.—[Special.]—Some of the comments of the morning papers on the star route verdict are almost as unique and unexpected as the verdict itself to the average reader.

The Sun says: "We believe the star route defendants have been ably prosecuted and fairly tried, as we have more than once pointed out. However, the case against them involves inherent difficulties of proof which must render it a task of extraordinary skill and labor to establish their guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. That task has simply proved impossible of achievement."

The Herald, which yesterday said "that such a man as Vedgen is not fit to be on the jury, goes without saying," to-day says: "It is not proper when they have rendered their verdict, to attack their character or qualifications. There is no reason to believe that any juryman was improperly approached or influenced, nor is it allowable to say that the verdict contradicts the evidence. The jury was the final judge of that."

THE "STAR" AND THE "WORLD."

The Star, Kelly's organ: "The star route trial has ended as it was expected to end, in the acquittal of the accused. The charge of conspiracy was sustained; that there was a conspiracy between these men is generally believed; but to prove its existence, beyond a reasonable doubt, years after it was supposed to have been entered into, was a very difficult matter."

The World, quoting General Sherman's utterance yesterday, "that Dorsey was a splendid senator, and Brady a hard-working, active man, and both seemed to me to be honorable men, what they did in the matter of the mail routes for which they have been tried was in the line of promoting population and developments of the west;" adds, after this: "Sherman ought to be retired, and the jury should be known in history as the 'Jim Jam Jury.'"

ITCHING FOR A LIBEL SUIT.

The Tribune and the Times bitterly denounce the outcome of the long trial. The latter paper having heard threats of its prosecution for libel by Brady and Dorsey if it continued its warfare, declares "the Times will not acquiesce in the verdict, and will continue its warfare. If this course should be unsatisfactory to Thomas J. Brady, Stephen W. Dorsey or any other star route thief, and they choose to attempt to vindicate themselves in libel suits, the Times will welcome the opportunity to do the republican party and country the grandest service of which it is capable, by proving in a court of law that they are thieves, and that it has told the truth in calling them such."

GENERAL GRANT SPEAKS.

NEW YORK, June 15.—[Special.]—General Grant said of the star routes: "I don't see but what the public is bound to accept the judgment rendered. It seems to me, however, that if the arguments had been much shorter they would have been much more effective. The jury heard so much that when they got through they were something like a judge I once heard of, who was always angry at the end of the trial that he could not give judgment against both parties."

SUMMONED TO ROME.

The Objects of the Meeting of American Bishops to be Held at the Vatican.

MILWAUKEE, June 15.—[Special.]—Archbishop Heiss, having received from the secretary of the propaganda at Rome, letters notifying him of a desire of the holy father that he should attend the conference of prelates which is to be held in that city in November, for the consideration of important questions connected with the government of the Catholic church in the United States, will take his departure for the Italian capital city early in October. The matters that are to be discussed in the conference include the government and education of catholic clergy, instruction of catholic youth, administration of church property, and the building and directing of churches and other ecclesiastical institutions. Besides these matters many others will come up for discussion. Some of which probably will be suggested during the course of the proceedings. At the conclusion of the conference its decisions will be communicated to the various bishops of the United States, and will be made the basis of action to be taken by the latter at the plenary council, composed of all of them, which will be held in the United States as soon after the conference as possible. The archbishop speaking of these matters, says:

EDUCATION OF THE PRIESTHOOD.

"Very likely the conference will counsel the contraction of fewer debts in the erection of churches and Catholic institutions. It will, perhaps, urge the desirability of more uniformity in the education of the priesthood. We have at present a large number of seminaries in the United States, and there is very little connection between them as to the matter of instruction of the Catholic youth. There may be something looking toward making a provision for higher education, but about that I do not know. There is no likelihood, I think, that the conference will directly oppose American public schools, but the church does not consider them sufficient for the Catholic religion on account of their failure to make provision for religious training. I, myself, believe public schools are very good for disseminating worldly knowledge. I have never spoken directly against them, but I have had occasion to speak in favor of Catholic schools, and thus could not avoid making an indirect arraignment of public schools in the respect in which they are deficient."

MARRIED TO A RABBI.

Miss Lotta Galloway, a Convert to the Jewish Faith, Becomes the Wife of a Holy Man.

BALTIMORE, June 15.—[Special.]—The excitement created some weeks ago by the conversion to Judaism of Miss Lotta Galloway, under the ministrations of Rabbi L. M. Lilienthal of this city has been revived by the fact that on Monday the reverend gentleman procured, from the clerk of the court a license to marry the girl. After her conversion the young lady became the adopted daughter of Mr. Lilienthal, taking the name Rebecca upon adopting her new faith. At the time she was engaged to a young Hebrew, and it was also said that her conversion was from this cause. There were many who did not coincide in this view, but on the contrary had a suspicion that the reverend gentleman himself was the object of her affection. This view was strengthed, when a few weeks later the lady broke off with her former lover. Matters quieted down in a few days, and like all other sensations, passed by and the matter dropped out of notice.

THE AFFAIR REVIVED.

The securing of a marriage license has revived the whole matter. Rabbi Lilienthal's troubles did not cease after he had secured the license, for he found it a difficult matter to get anyone to marry him, as applications to several rabbis to perform the ceremony and their subsequent refusal proved. Among those who declined to officiate at the nuptials were Revs. Hochelmer, of the Eden street synagogue, and Sale, of the Har Sinai temple. Both of these gentlemen refused to have their names connected with the affair. This was on Tuesday, the day after the license was procured. Tuesday evening Lilienthal left for Washington, taking the lady with him, and the marriage took place in that city yesterday. A sister of the bride stated to-night that she will take steps at once to question the right of Lilienthal's marriage with her sister.

CRIMINAL.

A KANSAS CITY TRAGEDY.

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—John Rayson, a mechanic, aged 24, this afternoon shot and killed Ada Thomas, inmate of a bagnio on West Third street, a handsome girl aged 18. Rayson knew the girl about a year and a half ago at Leavenworth. She afterward left him and several weeks since entered upon a life of shame in this city. Rayson, while under the influence of liquor, visited her this afternoon and attempted to persuade her to return. Failing in this he drew a revolver and fired five times, three balls entering the woman's head, one her shoulder, and the last passing through the heart. Reloading he fired twice at other inmates, and twice at an officer who attempted to arrest him, but without effect. He was then overpowered and taken to the station.

HANGED BY A MOB.

DETROIT, June 15.—A man named Warner, believed to be the person who outraged and scalded little [illegible] at Cheboygan, Tuesday night last, was taken from the jail at that place last night by a mob of [illegible] hanged. The girl identified him as her assailant, but he maintained his innocence after being once let down, and he confessed [illegible] until he [illegible] from life.

The Troubles of a Company of Variety Actors.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—The sailing of the Dakota this afternoon for Victoria and way ports was attended by considerable amusement at the expense of the manager of a concert hall in Seattle. It appears he was in a bad way for a company and after persistent search for talent he secured a number of actors and actresses who presented themselves at the dock some time prior to the sailing of the steamer. Time grew apace and the festive manager was nowhere to be seen, and the anxious look of the company was directed to the entrance of the dock. Every incoming wagon was closely scanned without success. The leading man, wearing a bandage around his head, and the only jovial one of the crowd, had ample work in assuaging the fears of the feminine portion of the company. At the last moment the manager jumped out of a carriage and was immediately surrounded by his people, and passing to the ticket office he turned around to inquire how many were in the party.

"Are you going, Liz?" he shouted, as he laid down money enough for double those who surrounded him.

Receiving a negative answer from Liz, he started the whole party in search for a case of wine that had been provided for the voyage. The search finally was abandoned, and the manager got aboard with his company. Just as the steamer pulled out the man with a sore head, who was standing on the bulwarks, espied a hack driver resting his extremities on the case of wine, and shaking his fist at him and hurling imprecations on his head, he held up to view a demijohn of whisky to convince the spectators that the company was not wholly wanting in valuable properties.

The Trade in Oregon and Washington Lumber.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—[Special.]—The announcement was made sometime ago that the lumber trade between Oregon and Washington territory and Mexico had commenced in earnest. It appears that arrangements were made recently through a prominent firm of this city for increased shipments of lumber to various Mexican ports, and that from this time on the trade in that direction will receive a valuable impetus. As a rule, charters were taken here, and in addition to the charges for second and even third handling the price of lumber was still further augmented by commissions paid brokers who commanded some custom from Mexico. The Montana, which was recently chartered by the firm of W. Loiza & Co., loads with Oregon pine, large quantities of which will in all probability follow that shipment. Nothing definite has yet been heard from the shipment made to Bath, Maine, of spars from Washington territory, but the opinion is entertained by lumbermen here that the venture will be highly successful, and that it will in time be the means of developing a very profitable field.

San Francisco Items.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—Mr. Houston, president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, reports the earnings of that company for the past year at 6 per cent on the capital stock.

Advices from the Arctic whaling fleet to April 22 report the Orca with 350 barrels of sperm oil, Belvidere with 315, Fleetwing with 300 and the Mabel with eighty.

In a dispatch from New York yesterday it was reported that large shipments of firearms, etc., were being made to China by eastern manufacturers, and that the next Pacific Mail steamer from here would carry a large quantity of ammunition. Pacific Mail people here state that no unusual shipment is being made. For years past shipments of arms and ammunition have been made to China this time of year.

Captain Edmund Kelly of the whaler Lucretia, now in the Arctic ocean arrived yesterday in bad health. He reports that from the 22d to the 24th of March his crew were in a state of mutiny, during which John Madden, the ringleader, was shot dead by the captain, which settled the disturbance. The crew returned to duty. Everything was in perfect order April 22, when the captain left.

Invention of a Submarine Torpedo Boat.

[Special.]—J. H. L. Tuck, after a labor of twenty years, has perfected a submarine torpedo boat made of steel and cigar shaped, which it is claimed will carry three men and remain under water an indefinite period of time. The person operating the torpedo is clad in diver's armor. He steps into a compartment and opens a trap and walks about in the usual manner. It is also claimed that the boat will pass under a ship without its presence being suspected. A boat will be built in a short time and exhibitions of its powers will be given in the bay.

Large Shipment of Opium to Portland.

[Special.]—A large quantity of opium valued at $25,000 was shipped to Portland this afternoon per State of California, on which duties will amount to over $5000. This consignment is a part of that brought by the British tramp Canton, on which duty to the amount of $148,000 was paid into the custom house to-day, swelling the receipts for one day to $209,326.73—the largest payment ever made in one day.

Attention, Portland Oarsmen.

[Special.]—Oscar Tole sailed yesterday for Portland for the purpose of making a match with some of the Willamette rowing clubs, in singles, two miles with turn. He recently defeated Langford in tolerably good time.

Fire at San Mateo.

A fire broke out at San Mateo this morning. A lack of water prevented the fire being got under control until the loss reached $20,300; insurance, $10,300. Ten buildings burned.

UTAH.

Must Pay Costs or Go to Prison.

SALT LAKE, June 15.—To-day Dr. Jeter Clinton, Mormon quarantine physician, was before the third district court for contempt in refusing to pay the cost of a divorce suit brought by his first and legal wife, a short time ago. He informed his divorced wife that he would rot in jail before he would pay the money. He was given five days in which to raise $145 or go to the Utah penitentiary. Clinton acted as surgeon in the Morrisite massacre in this territory, and was formerly police magistrate at Salt Lake, when many crimes were committed in the name of justice.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

News Notes from Seattle.

SEATTLE, June 15.—[Special.]—Louis Kerbel, who died yesterday from injuries received by a fall on the trestle at Newcastle Tuesday, was buried this afternoon. The mine closed down in order that the miners might attend the funeral, as deceased was highly respected. He was without family and aged 45 years.

The steamer North Pacific arrived here this evening with Vice President Oakes and Vice President Edmunds and party on board. They stayed about twenty minutes and left for Victoria.

The steamship Walla Walla sails to-night for San Francisco with 2600 tons of coal.

Efforts will be made to increase the Newcastle coal output to average 1000 tons per day, beginning on Monday next.

The Elder sails at 12 o'clock to-night with freight and passengers for San Francisco.

Flattering Crop Prospects.

WALLA WALLA, June 15.—[Special.]—Grain in all parts of eastern Oregon and Washington looks well. In a few places late sown would be better for rain, but fall sown never looked better. The new town of Adams alone, in Umatilla county, will ship 10,000 tons if the railroad gets there in time.

FOREIGN NEWS.

KING HUMBERT.

His Majesty Regrets that he Cannot see the World as do Reporters.

NEW YORK, June 15.—[Special.]—Herald's Rome: "In an interview with King Humbert, speaking of the Vatican question, his majesty declared he had the sincerest respect for the person of the pope, and regretted deeply that reconciliation between the church and state in Italy seemed so far distant.

"If the pope were to leave his retirement for the streets of Rome, I feel convinced that he would meet with the utmost deference."

Turning to foreign questions the king said it was his only desire that his kingdom should live in peace with all men. He had no hatred for France or any other country.

"I have no ambition, save to diminish taxation, which is very heavy, I admit, and to retain what we have now. Since Italy became united we have no such ambition other than where the people wish to diminish taxation. Where it does not increase expenditures too much we have made great improvements. We need peace."

With regard to the domestic politics of Italy the king expressed himself perfectly satisfied that his ministers are devoted and honest, and his subjects loyal. In conversation about America, in which he seemed to take a lively interest, he expressed much admiration for the enterprise of the New York press. This led to some talk about expeditions to the north pole, the discovery of which his majesty was content to leave to the next generation. His majesty, after a few courteous phrases, rose and shook hands hastily, saying in French, just before parting: "Were I not a king, I should wish to see the world as reporters do."

ENGLAND.

JOHN BRIGHT'S VIEWS ON ENGLISH POLITICS.

LONDON, June 15.—John Bright, responding to a speech of Granville at the banquet given the former at Birmingham last night, dwelt on the necessity of extending freedom of trade and franchise and the redistribution of seats in commons. Referring to India, he said he hoped the Marquis of Ripon, viceroy, could be supported in carrying out the policy of wisdom and justice. He censured the course of obstructionists in commons, who, he said, allied with the Irish rebel party, were doing their utmost to make it impossible for the house to do any work.

LONDON ITEMS.

LONDON, June 15.—The Times says the sentences of dynamite conspirators Gallagher, Whitehead, Wilson and Curtin is severe, but considering the heinous offense, they have not received more than their deserts. All London journals approve the sentence.

The commons last night passed a bill providing for grants to Admiral Seymour and Wolseley for services rendered during the war in Egypt.

FRANCE.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF MAJUNGA.

PARIS, June 15.—Admiral Pierre, commander of the French fleet at Madagascar, in a report of the bombardment of Majunga, May 16, says he demanded a surrender of the place, but received an evasive reply. Five vessels opened fire on the town, mounting thirty guns, and quickly silenced the works. The Hova quarter of the town was destroyed, but the French factory and most of the American houses escaped injury. The garrison of 2000 men retreated. The French sustained no loss. They occupied the town and are collecting customs.

GERMANY.

THE NEW CHURCH BILL.

BERLIN, June 15.—[Special.]—The committee of the lower house of the landtag on the church bill has approved the clause of the measure with the amendment allowing bishops recognized by the state to exercise their functions outside their dioceses. All amendments to the sixth clause, which repeals the provisions of many laws inconsistent with the bill, were rejected. The first reading of the bill was considered by the committee.

PORTUGAL.

A STEP TOWARD REPUBLICANISM.

LISBON, June 15.—A government bill, abolishing the hereditary chamber of peers and creating a senate, has been submitted and Prime Minister Mello instructed to reorganize the cabinet.

MEXICO.

The Mexicans Loud in Praise of Crook.

HERMOSILLO, June 15.—Your correspondent interviewed Gov. Torres to-day in regard to whether the Mexican government would demand the extradition of the Apaches captured by Crook, who claim they were never on San Carlos reservation and belonged to Sonora. The governor said he could not say that there would be no steps taken by him. It would be settled by the general government in the City of Mexico. All of the Mexican officers here are loud in their compliments of Crook. They say he is the only genuine Indian fighter in the world. The Mexican citizens are congratulating the American citizens on every hand with the expression "Viva Crook! Viva Americans." They feel that Sonora is redeemed from the bloodthirsty Apaches, and they give Crook all the credit.

HIGH LICENSE.

The Cause and Probable Outcome of the Fight in Illinois.

CHICAGO, June 15.—[Special.]—The Illinois state senate to-day will doubtless take up the high license liquor bill and pass it, which will have been acted into a statute after the governor's signature. This will end what has been the paramount issue in Illinois state politics for the past six months. While the liquor question did not come fairly before the people last fall, the prohibition agitation in Kansas and Iowa caused the liquor interest in Illinois to guard, as far as possible, against the election of legislators who would be likely to consent to giving the voters of the state an opportunity to vote upon prohibiting amendments. There were premonitions that some action would be taken in the legislature, and the high license measure was sprung as a compromise measure, and was championed by nearly every republican paper in the state. The measure originally provided for a uniform license of $500, but defeat seemed certain, and as a compromise to the beer interest, in the lower house the bill was made to read $150 for beer saloons and $500 for whisky saloons, in which shape it passed the lower house, and its final adoption seems certain in the senate.

EFFECT OF THE BILL.

The effect of the bill will be mainly felt in this city of 4000 saloons, and the contest has taken on a new interest by the attempt of the city council to nullify its operation for another year by permitting saloons of the city to take out licenses at $100 before the state law can enter into effect. This action has aroused the conflicting interests in the city, and mass meetings have been advertised to ratify the passage of the state law, and to condemn the state law and espouse the course of the city legislative body. The constitutionality of the law will then be tested, and in the case it is declared unconstitutional, on the ground of the distinction placed between beer and whisky licenses, to judge from the commands of state journals, the high license issue will be paramount in the next canvass.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

PENNSYLVANIA STOCK TRANSACTIONS.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—[Special.]—The Pennsylvania railroad stockholders' privilege of subscribing to the new stock of the company expired this afternoon. Although the actual allotment of subscription cannot be learned until computations are made, which will take ten days, the officers of the company say there is no doubt that the final allotment, amounting to 10,000 shares, will be taken in a few days. A rumor has been current that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's stock has not been disturbed in any way until to-day, when it took a leap to nearly 65 a share. This sudden activity and endorsement the cause of the fact that on the street to-day it was rumored that the lease was given high color by assurances that an agreement had been perfected, and that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company had taken the road and guaranteed a dividend of from 10 to 12 per cent on the Lehigh Valley road's capital stock.

VILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY.

Annual Meeting of the Board of Trustees—Commencement Exercises of the University—Alumni Reunion.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, June 15.

At 10 A. M., Wednesday the board met in the office of the university and transacted a large amount of business.

The report of Rev. F. P. Tower, the financial agent, was very encouraging, showing that the university is in a better condition financially than it has been for several years past. Steps were taken to get rid of the small debt yet remaining, and the prospects are that it will soon be canceled and the endowment materially enlarged during the year.

The president's report concerning the quantity and the quality of the work done during the year, the numbers in attendance and the internal working of the school was also very satisfactory.

By a unanimous vote of the board the following officers and committees were reelected to serve for the ensuing year: President, J. L. Parrish; vice president, E. Strong; secretary and treasurer, Chas. B. Moores; auditing committee, E. Strong, J. L. Parrish, G. P. Lichfield; endowment agent, Rev. F. P. Tower. This election shows something of the harmony and good will that exists in the board at the present time.

The ladies' executive committee, which has had charge of the home department of the Woman's college from the time of its organization, in accordance with the original plan, disbanded and turned over to the trustees of the university some $1500 worth of furniture, which was accepted with a vote of thanks to the ladies for the faithfulness with which they had performed their labors; also in accordance with the original plan of the Woman's college. Six ladies were nominated as trustees. The ladies thus nominated are Mrs. W. H. Odell, Mrs. Mary Kinney, Mrs. Charles B. Moores, Mrs. Josie DeVore Johnson, Mrs. G. W. Gray and Mrs. J. D. Lee. These nominations will doubtless be confirmed by the annual conference, which meets next August, and will add materially to the effective working force of the board. In addition to these ladies, the following gentlemen were also nominated: J. H. Wilbur, F. P. Tower, D. Payton, Lee Willis, W. S. Ladd, Dr. E. P. Frazer, Rufus Willard, W. F. Fife and Richmond Kelly.

The following teachers were employed for next year: Thos. Van Scoy, T. C. Jory, Miss Jennie Trigg, W. S. Arnold, S. A. Starr, Misses Jessie Eastham, L. T. Huse and A. R. Luse. Prof. J. M. Parvin was elected as director of the conservatory of music, with the Misses Frankie P. Jones, Julia Chamberlin and Constance Jordan as assistants. Miss Mary Bridges was elected art teacher.

The following degrees were conferred: Bachelor of Philosophy—Charles K. Cranston, Charles A. Gray and Arthur J. Stump. Conservatory diploma—Julia Chamberlin, Olive S. Eng and Frankie P. Jones and Constance Jordan. Doctor of Divinity—Rev. Joseph Pullman, A. M., of Brooklyn, N. Y. Doctor of Philosophy—Christopher C. Brooks, A. M., Baltimore, Md.

Resolutions of appreciation of and esteem for the life and work of E. J. Northrup of the board of trustees, and Miss Althea Moores of the faculty, who died during the past year were adopted and ordered to be placed upon the records.

REUNION OF THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

At 8 P. M. the usual large audience assembled in the chapel to enjoy the literary exercises of the Alumni. These consisted of some choice music, both vocal and instrumental; an oration of more than usual merit upon "the 'Provisional Government of Oregon'" by Prof. T. C. Jory of the class of '77; a well-written, well-read and very amusing poem by M. O. Lownsdale, class of '70; and an excellent essay upon "The Graduates" by Mrs. Mary E. Kinney, class of '78. Each of these three exercises was of a very high order and deserving of a much fuller notice than I am able now to give them. At the close of the literary exercises a goodly number of the Alumni and Alumnae, together with the faculty, trustees and invited guests, proceeded to the Woman's college, where some time was spent in partaking of refreshments and indulging in songs and reminiscences of the past.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Thursday at 10 A. M. the regular commencement exercises were held in the chapel, and while the audience was somewhat diminished by the firemen's tournament, which came off at the same hour, the interest taken in the exercises fully compensated for the loss in numbers. Here, as all through commencement week, the music was a noticeable feature on account of its excellent quality. After the rendition of two choice selections by members of the university, Rev. D. G. LeSourd of Olympia, W. T., led the audience in prayer, and Chas. K. Cranston delivered a fine oration on "Feudalism." Mr. Cranston first described the romantic and interesting remains of the castles and other structures of feudal times, thoroughly analyzed the three elements which constituted the system; showed how it transferred the wealth of those times from the city to the country, and how it developed the elements of a domineering and oppressive rule. He also pointed out its most redeeming trait, its chivalrous treatment of women; gave the reasons for its duration, and the elements and instruments by which it was finally overthrown. In conclusion he stated that while we admire its massive ruins, we should be thankful that only its shadow remains.

Mr. Cranston was followed by Mr. Charles A. Gray, who rendered a thoughtful oration upon "Unity of Thought and Action." Mr. Gray showed that man is not intended to live an idle life, but that he who would succeed in any calling must study well his occupation; that "he who aims at nothing always hits it, and that he who aims at everything always misses it." He cited Columbus and other worthy examples of men who succeeded because of unity of thought and action; showed the necessity of hard work in one line if one desires success at the present time.

Mr. Arthur A. Stump chose for his subject "Monarchy," and handled it in such a way as to show much thoughtful preparation. He first noted its rapid increase about the time of the close of the Crusades; showed how it fused the diverse elements of society that then existed, and became the most general and permanent form of government that has yet existed. It has penetrated everywhere, and adapts itself to every kind of society. It is not the will of a single individual. The people do not mean to be governed by the will of one man. It is the representative of a legitimate sovereign will. All attempts of political institutions have been to find a legitimate will, and monarchy seems the most nearly to resemble it. It was well adapted to the earlier ages, and it is still well adapted to that purpose. Indications are that France will at no distant day again become a monarchy. It has always found, and now, finds its strength in the fact that it represents the legitimate will which should govern society.

At the close of Mr. Stump's oration Rev. Dr. Nesbit of the Baptist church of this city delivered such an excellent address that it was decided to have it printed, so I will attempt no report of it here. After his address came the conferring of degrees and awarding of prizes which had been earned by hard and faithful study. The class song was then sung. President Stanley of the Normal college pronounced the benediction and the most commencement for many years at Willamette ended.

THE ART DEPARTMENT.

In connection with the literary exercises, I should have mentioned the display of work by the pupils in art. The walls of the large society hall were lined with some as fine specimens of various kinds of artistic work as I have ever seen when the age of the pupils executing them, and the time spent upon them are taken into consideration. The hall was visited by many persons who were agreeably surprised at the quantity and quality of the work, both of which indicated the good judgment of the trustees in retaining Miss Bridges as teacher of art. Miss Maggie Caples of Portland took the prize, a $10 gold coin, for the greatest improvement in sketching from nature, and her many friends say it was well deserved.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

KNOCKED INTO THE RIVER.

The delay of Wednesday evening's passenger train was not caused by drifting sand, as telegraphed to this city the evening, but by a heavy boulder rolling down the mountain side at Shell Rock and striking a freight train that happened to be passing there at the time. The force of the boulder striking the train knocked three cars off the track, two of them rolling into the river. Rumor has it that two Chinamen were killed, but nothing authentic on this score can be obtained; one, however, was very badly mashed up. A wrecking train was immediately sent from The Dalles, and after six hours' hard work the track was sufficiently cleared to allow the up passenger train to pass on its way. Some brakemen who were sitting on one of the cars that was struck saw the boulder coming, and had just time to get out of the way when the crash came.—Walla Walla Union.

BRIDGE CARRIED AWAY.

A gentleman down from the front on Tuesday reports that quite a disaster happened last week to the N. P. R. R. road at Beaver creek, about 140 miles east of Spokane. It appears that recent heavy rains had so saturated a heavy filling in of clay on one side of the abutment which supports the bridge over Beaver creek, causing such a lateral pressure, that the abutment gave way and precipitated about 200 feet of trestling and 150 feet of the bridge with the track into the chasm below. It was fortunately discovered in time to prevent any accident to trains, but it has interfered disastrously with the travel and the rolling stock of the road, as a large number of freight cars, which happened to be in use temporarily east of the break, are now blockaded and cannot be available. This accounts for the small freight trains noticed on the road for the past week, and the difficulty in securing cars for the transportation of freight.—Spokane Falls Chronicle.

Grayhaired Men and Women Renewing Past Memories.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED ASSEMBLED AT SALEM.

Addresses of President J. W. Nesmith, Hon. W. Lair Hill and John F. Caples—The Camp-fire—Officers Elected.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, June 15—10:30 P. M.

Such an assemblage as that which has thronged Salem and the fair grounds to-day never before met in Oregon. A country which is commonly said to have no old people to-day turned out no less than 1500 gray-haired men and women, and these with several times their own number of descendants met in the oak grove on the fair grounds at 10 o'clock. Almost all the prominent pioneers of the state were present, and scarcely a single family of all those who came the plains across before 1855 but was represented either by its head or by one of its descendants. Shortly after 11 o'clock the open air meeting was called to order by President J. W. Nesmith who, after prayer by Rev. J. L. Parrish, spoke as follows:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Ladies and gentlemen of the Oregon Pioneer Association, and fellow-citizens: We are assembled to hold our eleventh reunion in commemoration of the 15th day of June 1846. Thirty-seven years ago to-day it was definitely determined by and between the United States of America and Great Britain that the soil upon which we now stand should thenceforth be subject to the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, and that all of that vast region of territory upon the Pacific coast from the 49th parallel of latitude on the north to the 42d parallel of latitude on the south—and which now embraces the state of Oregon and Washington territory—should become an integral portion of the great American republic. By the most solemn official act known to or exercised by nations, England yielded her claim to an empire. Prior to that date a few of us who are here to-day were residents of Oregon, and at the time when the country was subject to joint occupancy by the citizens of the United States and the subjects of Great Britain. It is scarcely necessary for me to remind the pioneers who were here thirty-seven years ago of the anxious solicitude with which we watched and waited for the results of the treaty, involving as it did the important question to us as to whether we were to remain under the protection of the stars and stripes or become subjects of the British monarchy. It was a time of great rejoicing among the few scattered residents here when we came to know for a certainty that Oregon was firmly established as an integral portion of the American union, and our allegiance to the old flag had not been sacrificed or bartered away by wiles of diplomacy. The importance of the event to us who were then settlers in Oregon can scarcely be appreciated by those of our fellow citizens who have more recently arrived here. To us who were here under the treaty of joint occupancy, the 15th day of June became a sort of localized Fourth of July, and we still contemplate its annual recurrence with a feeling akin to that with which we regard the glorious achievements of our ancestors on the Fourth of July, 1776. The Declaration of Independence was the initial point in establishing our great free democratic republic, and the treaty of June 15, 1846, was a conveyance in the nature of a warrantee deed executed by the two greatest nations of the earth, covenanting and guaranteeing to the Oregon pioneers that they and their posterity forever should remain under the protection of the government established by the toil, sufferings and patriotic perseverance of their ancestors. It is, therefore, not strange that we should annually assemble to commemorate the important event in our history, so full of interest to us and to our descendants. There are but a few of us left who were here to rejoice at the results of the treaty concluded thirty-seven years ago to-day. The most of our comrades have joined the great majority and have gone down in "the fongueless silence of the dreamless dust." Pioneers, let us to-day kindly remember the good fellows who have crossed over, and who were a generation ago our friends, neighbors and compatriots. Though the treaty was concluded on the 15th of June, the facilities for the transmission of news were so few and uncertain that no information as to the results of the negotiations reached Oregon until the following 12th of November, and then the news came by sailing vessels by the way of the Sandwich Islands. This fact of itself illustrates the wonderful triumphs of progress and civilization that have taken place within our memory. Now it would require less than five minutes to transmit the news for which we then waited five months. At the time the treaty was signed the American settlers west of the Rocky mountains consisted of a few people scattered over the lower Willamette valley. They were destitute of commercial facilities, isolated from the rest of the world, poor in worldly effects, and dependent for news or associations with the civilized world upon the slow progress of ox teams making a six months' toilsome march across nearly 2000 miles of desert wilderness, inhabited by wild and hostile savages.

I am quite sure that none of us expected to live to see the wonderful developments which we now witness in every portion of what, at that date, appeared to us an uninviting wilderness. As an illustration of the rapidity with which news was transmitted at that time, I may state that the democratic convention which nominated Mr. Polk for the presidency, met in Baltimore on the 27th of May, 1844, after the emigrants had left the Missouri frontier and the emigrants of 1845 brought us the news of the election. Polk had been nominated, elected and inaugurated president of the United States for several months before we knew who the candidates were. How discouraging it would be to those of us in Oregon, who dabble in politics and like to be on the popular side if we had to wait a year to know whether we were to be sharers in the spoils or suffer the humiliations of defeat. Under the then existing condition of affairs and before lightning had been harnessed to run in opposition to the ox teams, it is not strange that many public men were to be found in and out of congress who derided the idea that there ever would be an American state west of the Great American Desert and the Rocky Mountains. But there were at that time two frontier senators in congress, representing the western verge of civilization, who knew of what sort of material the men of the frontier were made, and whose patriotism was so broad that it spanned the continent from ocean to ocean. I refer to Dr. Lewis F. Linn and Col. Thomas H. Benton of Missouri. Linn was cultured, kind, yielding and amiable, but none the less hopeful and patriotic, and full of anxiety to encourage emigration to Oregon. Benton, in addition to his great learning, was arrogant, fearless and aggressive, and with prophetic vision saw what were to be the results of scientific experiments then in their infancy. With proud and imperious mien he stood up before an immense assemblage of people at St. Louis on the 19th day of October, 1844, and uttered the following predictions:

"I say the man is alive, full-grown, and is listening to what I say, without believing it, perhaps, who will yet see the Asiatic commerce traversing the North Pacific ocean, entering the Oregon river, climbing the western slope of the Rocky mountains, issuing from its gorges and spreading its fertilizing streams over our wide-extended union. The steamboat and the steam-car have not exhausted all their wonders. They have not yet found their amplest and most appropriate theaters—the tranquil surface of the North Pacific ocean, and the vast inclined plains which spread east and west from the base of the Rocky mountains. The magic boat and the flying car are not yet seen upon this ocean, and upon this plain, but they will be seen there; and St. Louis is yet to find herself as near Canton as she now is to London, with a better and a safer route by land and sea to China and Japan than she now has to France and Great Britain.

Grand "Old Bullion" with all his arrogance and foibles, was the greatest, most true and hopeful friend that the Oregon pioneers ever had. We have given a slight recognition of the services of Benton and Linn in our behalf by giving their names to two of the counties of our state. Pioneers, a few of us have lived to witness the consummation of the predictions that Benton, in his hopefulness, made of our country thirty-nine years ago. The magic boat and flying car of which Benton spoke, and the electric telegraph and telephone, of which he had no conception, are at our doors, and are familiar objects. The days of our pioneer toil and privations are past; progress and the wonderful developments of science have brought us in contact with the civilized world, and we are in the enjoyment of blessings unknown to our immediate ancestors. May our posterity long enjoy these advantages under a free and enlightened government of their own choice.

During the delivery of the address the speaker was applauded frequently and with much heartiness. Hon. W. Lair Hill of The Dalles was then introduced as the orator of the day. Mr. Hill delivered the following

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Pioneer Association: The address which I have the [illegible] presenting [illegible] will be a departure [illegible] and I fear an unacceptable one—from the line of those which have preceded it. It will not be in any accurate sense, historical. In stating the reasons for this departure I am compelled to inflict upon you both an apology, which, though always tiresome, is not always useful, and a confession, personal to myself, which is, in most cases, not of interest. Shortly after receiving the invitation with which you honored me, to address you upon this occasion, I was prostrated by a severe illness, so severe, for some time [illegible] impossible for me to give even [illegible] thought to the matter [illegible] to attempt anything [illegible] in the way of collecting and arranging historical [illegible] from the already well-garnered field of Oregon's pioneer period. When I recovered sufficiently to remember that I had engaged to [illegible] for a little while at [illegible] but was not yet able to begin the collection of such facts as may be useful to the future student of the history of Oregon, and interesting to those who live here. In the story of the infancy of which any first impulse was to [illegible] the officers of my condition, [illegible] them to excuse [illegible] from my appointment [illegible] I could not [illegible] some active part in [illegible] commemorating [illegible] giving up the wish I have to recorded transactions of a [illegible] of the men and women [illegible] passing away, in whose lives [illegible] early manhood [illegible] found, in the main, as I [illegible] remained some few weeks [illegible] wholly recovered in time [illegible] world, at least, [illegible] of pleasant entertainment [illegible] came slowly, and these day by day, impatiently waiting to-morrow would find me able to do something [illegible] toward gathering historical matter worth preserving [illegible] I let the time slip by until it was too late for [illegible] officers to secure another to fill my place. I now [illegible] how much you will realize, in this [illegible] and undertake course in [illegible] the bill of fare, the [illegible] is not [illegible] promptly on the [illegible] paper and [illegible] the look over [illegible]

This is to certify that I am well acquainted with a man fifty years of age, for many years a resident of this city, who has been at times extremely ill, but could not tell from what cause, unless it was worms. He told his attending physician his suspicions, but the physician at once ridiculed the idea, and refused to attend him any longer. His son then mentioned Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and asked him if he would take it. He reply was—I must take something to get relief, or die.

They at once procured a bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and he took one dose. The result was, he passed upwards of three quarts of worms, cut up in every form. He got well immediately, and is now enjoying excellent health; and, like the good Samaritan of old, is endeavoring to relieve his unfortunate neighbors. He makes it his business to hunt up and select all cases similar to his own, that may be given over by regular physicians, and induces them to try Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. So far he has induced more than twenty persons to take the Vermifuge, and in every case with the most happy results. He is well satisfied that Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, is far superior to any other known remedy, and that if more generally known would not fail to save many valuable lives. For further particulars inquire of Mrs. Hardie, 114½ Cannon street, New York City.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 16, 1883.

IMMIGRANTS WE DO NOT WANT.

Our country is receiving this year in much larger numbers than ever before classes of immigrants that we do not want. Among them are large numbers who, instead of being of use to the country, will only be dead weight. Their presence adds new complications to many social, industrial and political problems, and deepens the difficulty of dealing with questions which already are attended with much embarrassment. Recently large "consignments" of Mormons have been arriving from Europe. Some of them are reported to the state department, on good authority, to be paupers. The Mormons of Utah are naturally ready to receive these poor creatures, because most of them are women; and women for the Utah shambles can be recruited in considerable numbers only from the lowest and most ignorant classes in foreign countries. Mormon missionaries, at work among these classes hold out to them a hope of a better condition, which is the more plausible from the fact that their life-long condition at home could not well be worse; and the thrifty authorities, glad to see a chance of getting rid of a class who are supported by charity among them, when they find the priests of polygamy working up a batch of converts, give the undertaking all the aid in their power. A large number of [illegible] recently sent out for Mormon "consumption" in Utah came from Switzerland. It is asserted that the authorities there made, through an agent, a donation of 160 francs each to aid in sending their paupers to America. Mormons at New York took charge of and sent them on to their destination. Now, while we are trying to suppress polygamy, we permit the importation of material to support it. [illegible] we are paying vast sums to keep our own [illegible] we are permitting other nations to unload their paupers upon us. Although this [illegible] has been discussed and condemned through the [illegible] for a score of years, it is awakening [illegible] attention now, as foreign governments [illegible] to be more energetically engaged in dumping their human rubbish on our [illegible]. Foreign governments secretly [illegible] to send the undesirable [illegible]. There is great distress in [illegible] British rule has brought want [illegible]. Under cover of this general [illegible] English societies which help [illegible] emigrate are also sending us [illegible] they have supported for years. [illegible] ambitious German or [illegible] room for, but we do not want [illegible] the Fatherland or the lazaroni [illegible] our government will be [illegible] measures to check. Our [illegible] room for the [illegible]

[illegible] SUSTAINED.

[illegible] point in the Schneider case, [illegible] the license ordinance, [illegible] council has authority [illegible] to require payment of the [illegible] in the ordinance which [illegible] liquor sellers of the [illegible] obscurity in the [illegible] empowers the common [illegible] regulate and restrain [illegible] and the ordinance [illegible] shall sell or permit [illegible] spirituous or malt [illegible] on the premises without [illegible] therefor," for which [illegible] shall pay into the city [illegible] per annum, payable [illegible] ordinance does not in [illegible] or "drinking [illegible] shop is constituted [illegible] liquors to be [illegible] premises;" or, as [illegible] it "it does not require [illegible] interpretation to define [illegible] shop. It means a place [illegible] to be drunk." But the [illegible] further authority for [illegible] section which empowers [illegible] to restrain all offensive [illegible] "I think," he says, [illegible] such a trade or occupation [illegible] this section." There is [illegible], but as no question [illegible] directly raised it is [illegible] say that even [illegible] invalid, as claimed, [illegible] to violate the section [illegible] of the license fee. [illegible] the text of the opinion [illegible] delivered orally by Judge [illegible] the notes of a short-[illegible] was afforded

[illegible] EARNEST PURPOSE.

[illegible] the plan outlined by the [illegible] who insist on the imposing [illegible] to the common council [illegible] support the liquor license ordinance [illegible] of a considerable [illegible] each of the parties have [illegible] will be presented to the [illegible] this afternoon and [illegible] that from among them [illegible] made by the respective conventions [illegible] citizens who are engaged in [illegible] have no ends to secure beyond [illegible] and efficient government. They [illegible] that both conventions will see [illegible] sustaining this effort to rid [illegible] worst evils of an unlicensed and [illegible] traffic in liquors, and to bring [illegible] liquors under proper regulation. [illegible] of this committee, whose actions [illegible] approval and support of [illegible] body of good citizens, is an earnest [illegible] Monday next an enormous vote will [illegible] support of the purpose to hold in [illegible] the worst abuses of the liquor trade in [illegible] and the nominating conventions will [illegible] that interposition of party [illegible] not be permitted to withdraw attention [illegible] at 8 o'clock this evening a meeting of citizens will be held at Turn Halle, [illegible] the action of the conventions [illegible] thereon as circumstances [illegible] require. Upon proper advisement [illegible] of the respectable classes of the city [illegible] substantially in a unit in favor [illegible] the license ordinance; and there is gratifying assurance that an earnestness prevails [illegible] will not be diverted from its purpose.

Those who have been led into the belief that a canal is out of date as a means of transportation may read with some surprise that there are now many times more canals in progress of construction than at any other time in the world's history. Such, however, is the fact. The New York Sun points out this truth and produces a long list of such enterprises now under way that abundantly prove the growing popularity of water routes. The great success of the Suez canal has induced the construction of another artificial channel by its side at a cost of $150,000,000. At Manchester, England, a great ship canal is under way that will cost $[illegible],000,000. In Scotland, a canal eighty miles long, connecting the Tyne and Solway Frith, is being constructed at an enormous expense. In France a ship canal from the bay of Biscay to the Mediterranean to cost $200,000,000 has been commenced. In Denmark one between the German ocean and the Baltic and in Greece one across the isthmus of Corinth have recently been undertaken. In Asia a canal across the Malay peninsula, which will bring Europe closer to all Chinese and Japanese ports, is also projected. These facts show plainly that the canal is being more widely recognized by the first engineers and nations of the world as the most useful and indispensable adjunct to inland commerce.

Good citizens will support the best men without regard to party. In a city election no political question is presented. It is therefore useless to talk of republicans or democrats. There is only one "issue" in the coming city election. That is enforcing the laws against the lawless whisky association. If men called republicans will do this, well; if men called democrats will do this, well. If neither will do it, then the intrusion of party names will not carry the candidates. Citizens will await the make up of the tickets and then decide.

Considerable reductions have been made in the charges of California railroads since the beginning of the year 1882. In 1881 the average rate of freights per ton per mile was 2.46 cents; in 1882 it was 1.81 cents. The average rate of fare per passenger a mile in 1881 was 3.06 cents. In 1882 it was 2.23 cents. It is claimed that these reductions have been made "in accord with the laws of railroading and not as a concession to political demagogues."

Complaint is made that it is difficult to get good men to become candidates on party tickets for the common council. No doubt it is; and the main reason of it arises from the fact that the attempt to introduce party and party "issues" on such occasions is out of place, and altogether absurd. There has seldom been difficulty in getting the consent of our best citizens to the use of their names as independent or non-partisan candidates for the common council.

The man who has been working so long in this city to solve the problem of perpetual motion, that is, to make a machine that would propel itself, has a great many fellow "scratchsters." Some days ago there was a sale of models at the patent office in Washington. About one thousand of them were connected with the perpetual motion mania. They had been accumulating in the office for many years.

Commenting on General Beauregard's opinion that the negro is dying out in the south, the Richmond State says: "That's what we think here in Virginia 363 days in the year; but on the other two, which are election days, we find every reason to believe quite the reverse."

E. Garrison, aged 71 years, died at the home of his son near McMinnville the 9th inst. He was a native of Ohio, and came to Oregon in 1843, settling in Yamhill county. In 1850 he removed to Marion county, where he resided 20 years. He leaves three children, who reside in Yamhill county.

The First Woman's Christian Temperance Convention of Oregon.

Temporary Organization Effected and Various Committees Appointed.

Addresses by Miss Willard, Mrs. Riggs, Cooke and Mrs. Hines—The State is Largely Represented.

At [illegible] yesterday [illegible] the Woman's Christian Temperance Association of the State of Oregon [illegible]. Miss Frances E. Willard [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] and prayer.

Miss Willard then called on the venerable Mrs. Clawson, who also led in prayer.

Miss Willard then made a brief address expressing her very great gratification at seeing such a large representation present at this first convention.

At her suggestion a committee on credentials was appointed, consisting of Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. Royal, Mrs. Riggs and Mrs. Harris.

Miss Willard stated that in conference with the call and in the request of Mrs. Hines and [illegible] arrangements for the meeting she would [illegible] until a permanent organization should be effected, but suggested that a temporary secretary be appointed.

Mrs. Cartwright was elected secretary.

Miss Alice Phillips and Miss Anna Fearnside were appointed as ushers.

The meeting, on two different motions, ruled to admit delegates from other temperance organizations besides the W. C. T. U. and the churches, and also any society not wholly devoted to temperance.

Mrs. A. R. Riggs then made the following

ADDRESS OF WELCOME:

Sisters of the State of Oregon, Delegates and Friends of Temperance: Wholly unexpected to myself, and at a late hour, I have been chosen to offer to you this greeting, which, but for the hand of affliction, would have been given by our beloved state president. Deeply conscious of my unworthiness, as well as inability to fill her place, I yet cheerfully respond to her request, because of the love I bear her, and the noble cause she represents. Our greeting, though brief, shall not be wanting in earnestness, cordiality or warmth of feeling. Most heartily do we welcome you to our beautiful city and the hospitality of our homes. We said our greetings would be brief. It will not be so of design, but of necessity. First because of the brevity of our time; second, because of the important character of the work which this day is destined to bring to you, my sisters, to each and to all. More light is to be shed upon our minds, more horizons are to appear to reveal fresh beauties to our mental vision. With this new light and enlarged vision will come increased responsibility. Opportunities will appear for standing in a more sacred relation to God, because of the work his hand shall hold out to us, and thus we shall be in a more and more helpful relation to each other and to humanity in general. God will speak to our hearts to-day if he will allow him; therefore it is becoming that our words be firm and our consciences be quick and tender. In these few words of welcome we not only bid you welcome to our homes and to our hearts' warmest friendship, but we congratulate you in behalf of the rare privileges which this occasion opens up before you. It brings before you a field of christian work, embracing rare opportunities in the way of demands upon your thought, opportunities for a wise use of all your time. And, most of all, that opportunity which ever confronts the true christian worker—that of self-sacrifice, which leads to grand and noble deeds—grand and noble because done for the eye "which seeth in secret and rewardeth openly." The thought comes, too, that while it presents many open doors to the consecrated workers, it will also close some. That door that always stands open, unwilling to ease and indifference, closes at once in the face of every consecrated toiler in this field as white to the harvest. That sister which opens up to view one ceaseless round of social frivolities will be cut off forever. But to her who has the courage to cut loose from the weights and the snares, forsaking all to follow him who hath created for her a higher and nobler calling, there opens up a field of illimitable possibilities. An important curriculum of studies presents itself for your consideration, embracing scientific research, the study of hygiene, scientific instruction in the schools, temperance in the Sunday-school, the legislative phase of this great temperance problem, the great problem of successful organization, and many other departments of knowledge which I dare not enter here on account of my promise to be brief. All this and much more will demand the careful husbanding of our spare moments, and that patient attention which leaves no time for idle talk or frivolous employment. In closing this little welcome shall we be allowed a word of exhortation? Let us be true, true to ourselves and faithful to our opportunities and the fulfilled prophecy of those long gone shall be ours to subdue kingdoms; to work righteousness; to quench the violence of the fiery evil which threatens our land and nation; to rescue our youths from the edge of this sword of destruction, out of weakness to be made strong; to wax valiant in this fight for the right; to turn to flight the armies of intemperance; to receive our loved ones raised to life from the death stupor of alcoholic poison, accepting deliverance from the torture of this relentless foe; obtaining, through our labor of love, a reformed and exalted condition of society. This is no mirage of the mind, but a reflection of our father's own truth, which, though crushed to earth, shall rise again, when error shall writhe in pain and die amid her worshipers. Thus we close our glad greeting with the beautiful and impressive sentiment of our beloved English authoress, now deceased, Frances Ridley Havergal, that "Not one sentence that passes these lips of ours but must be an invisibly prolonged influence, not dying away into silence, but living away into the words and deeds of others."

THE RESPONSE.

Mrs. Belle W. Cooke of Salem was called upon to respond to this address, and as she spoke extemporaneously, only the substance is given.

It is a hopeful omen that we meet in this building, which was the first battlefield in Oregon of the crusade. The question is often asked us now, as it was then, "What do you expect to do?" Well, we can pray if we do nothing else, although women have been praying for ages. But we hope to do more. When men desire to effect great results they meet and organize, so as to effect something by associated power. We can organize. We can at least have ourselves ready for what may come. The cause of temperance seems to be gaining ground all over the country. Even among its opponents there is a greater feeling of its power and progress than ever before. In this cause we have to learn patience more than in any other. We must work, not expecting to see the results of our labors in this life. We should remember the patience and long suffering of God. We need renewed faith. Faith, that all effort for good will not fail in its mission. We must here if anywhere "learn to labor and to wait."

Miss Willard said these words of welcome and of response filled her heart with gratitude, because they were words of faith, hope, and of patience. And they were harbingers of victory. As the larger number of delegates came pouring in she felt that abundant success was assured. Years from now, when your conventions shall be deemed the great events, and your anniversaries shall bring together its hundreds and thousands, you will look back to these words and say those women struck the keynote of success.

At Miss Willard's suggestion the convention selected a committee on the courtesies of the convention, such as extending invitations to prominent ministers and other workers in the cause. She thought it wiser that a committee should take these names under consideration and present them to the convention. Mrs. M. A. Dalton, Mrs. H. W. Scott and Mrs. A. S. Duniway were elected.

The following committees were also elected by the convention: On organization: Mrs. A. R. Riggs of Portland, Mrs. B. W. Cooke of Salem, Mrs. Wallis Nash of Corvallis, Mrs. Shipley of Oswego and Mrs. Blain of Albany. On declaration of principles and plan of action: Mrs. Cartwright of Portland, Mrs. Hunter of Forest Grove, Mrs. Johnson of The Dalles, Mrs. Dr. Kelly of Albany and Mrs. Stubbs of Portland.

Mrs. H. W. Scott, by request of the author, who was prevented by sickness from being present, read the address of Mrs. H. K. Hines, as follows:

Dear Sisters: At a time apparently the most unpropitious for me, I am called upon to present the

FIRST ANNUAL ADDRESS

Ever made to a Woman's Christian Temperance Convention in Oregon. I may be pardoned if, in the circumstances under which I address you, I speak a few words of myself. I write in my sick-room, not knowing, hardly indeed hoping, that I shall be able to look upon your gathering. I am therefore only address you briefly and far less satisfactorily to myself or to you than I might otherwise have done.

It is suitable, perhaps, that I give you a brief account of the organization and progress of our work in the state.

About two years ago I was appointed vice president of the National W. C. T. U. and given charge of its work in the state, and for a time also in Washington and Idaho territories. I accepted the place only because I dare not decline. I had not opened the door; providence had set it before me, and I felt that I must enter in. Mrs. White has the distinguished honor of being the first vice president of the national union for Oregon, and I think of organizing the first local union. This was organized in Hall street M. E. church in this city. Mrs. White also organized a local union in Albany. This excellent and cultivated lady, removing to a distant and isolated portion of the state, resigned her office, and I was appointed in her stead.

On looking over the field after my appointment I found only those two organizations. I immediately began an extensive correspondence with christian women and with the pastors of churches, looking to the extension of the organization to the different portions of the state and territories. Some responses were full of encouragement, some full of discouragement. Quite a number of pastors declined to cooperate and some even directly opposed the introduction of the organization; not, of course, out of any opposition to the W. C. T. U. as such, but on the ground that the women of their churches were already overburdened with church and other work. So generally were these responses full of discouragement that, had I not already learned by nearly thirty years toil in the master's work on the Pacific coast that the "race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong," I would have given up all hope of seeing our cause established in Oregon. Little was I able to do during the first year, further than to endeavor to awaken interest in our work by correspondence and such gratuitous help as some of the press kindly [illegible]. We were not only without means, and [illegible] visited the places where there were hopes of [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

I began this part of my work in April, 1882, by a [illegible] ... all the towns [illegible] east as [illegible], about 300 miles from Portland, over [illegible] of that distance by stages over the Blue mountains and in a time of year when the roads were in the worst possible condition. On reaching [illegible], within [illegible] miles of the end of my contemplated route, I was met very cordially, even enthusiastically, by the christian women of the place, and under most promising conditions organized a local union.

Almost as soon as this was done a telegram from Portland reached me at once to the bedside of a dying sister, and I was thus compelled to leave all other appointments in that part of the state unfilled.

During the summer of 1882 I made visits to The Dalles, Salem, Albany, Eugene City, Corvallis, Independence, McMinnville, Lafayette and Astoria. At all those places except McMinnville, Lafayette and Astoria, unions were organized, either then or soon subsequently.

In April last, on [illegible] request of some of the christian ladies of Roseburg, I made a trip to that place, 200 miles south of Portland, and succeeded in organizing a union composed of most excellent christian workers.

On the trip, owing to unexpected exposures, I contracted a cold which held its grip on me [illegible] all the strength I had left [illegible] this [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]

There are few local unions organized in the following places: Portland, Salem, Albany, [illegible], Corvallis, Independence, Dayton and The Dalles.

[illegible]

[illegible] what of the night?

Long the day star [illegible] below the [illegible] only [illegible] our vision [illegible] token of its rising. But it [illegible] and the [illegible] of hope [illegible]. The [illegible] sisters of [illegible] and of us. The [illegible] of [illegible] see now acting with us. They [illegible] their time, and give us the cheer of their sympathy and [illegible] of their prayers. The press [illegible] the prosperity of our work, and with general approval. Every temperance organization of the state [illegible] fraternal hands with us. On the whole, therefore, I cannot but feel that we have great reason for gratitude, that out of so doubtful and dark a night we look into a day of so much promise and hope.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

I have endeavored, out of my own intimate acquaintance with all parts of the state as well as from all information I could gather from any source, to reach such conclusions as to our work as would most surely and most rapidly push its success. I desire to offer for your consideration the following recommendations for its future adjustment:

First—Let the state be divided into six districts, as follows:

First district—Multnomah, Clackamas, Washington, Columbia and Clatsop.

Second District—Marion, Linn and Lane.

Third District—Benton, Polk and Yamhill.

Fourth District—Wasco, Umatilla and Crook.

Fifth District—Union and Baker.

Sixth District—Douglas, Jackson, Josephine, Coos and Curry.

Let one vice president of the state union be appointed for each district, who shall have general oversight of the work within their districts severally, and in case of the death or resignation of the president, succeed to her duties and work in the order of the district.

I make these suggestions solely in the interests of our work, and because I am fully satisfied that such a division of labor and responsibility will render our work much more effective, and enable us to prosecute it at much less cost of time and money.

Dear sisters, I cannot close without a heartfelt reference to the auspicious circumstances under which you have convened. In the midst of an enthusiastic ovation to the honored and beloved president of the national union,

MISS FRANCES E. WILLARD,

And with her to preside over our deliberations and enlighten us from her long and wide experiences, as well as by her transcendent abilities, and inspire us by her words as wise, as eloquent and as gentle as strong, we could not ask a more propitious hour in which to meet. We all feel honored in her honor, and feel that in her coming she has brought us much nearer the warm, live heart of our cause, and much nearer to that spirit of prayer, and faith and work without which we may not hope for success.

I am, dear sisters, yours,

"For God and home and native land,"

MRS. H. K. HINES,
Pres. W. C. T. U., Oregon.

The address was adopted by vote of the convention.

The time from this on to adjournment at noon was taken up with verbal reports from presidents of local associations.

Afternoon Session.

The union was opened by devotional exercises, led by Mrs. Edwards Switzer, after which a beautiful solo was rendered by Mr. Kinross, accompanied by the grand organ, touched by the skillful fingers of Mrs. M. A. Smith, which was heartily enjoyed by the audience.

Reading of minutes of morning session was called for, read and accepted.

It was moved and carried that Mrs. D. W. Williams, a veteran of 90 years, be made an honorary member of the convention.

Moved and carried that "Mother Skinner," another veteran, be added to the same list.

Mrs. N. J. Simons was elected assistant secretary pro tem.

Reports of local unions followed.

Mrs. Townsend, president of Albany W. C. T. U., read a very encouraging report.

Mrs. Salisbury, delegate, gave a verbal report from The Dalles.

Mrs. Royal, president of W. C. T. U. at Salem, gave a verbal report which was encouraging, especially in regard to distributing temperance literature and soliciting signatures to prohibition petition and 1000 names were secured. This was followed by some spirited remarks by Miss Willard, expressing great encouragement by the report.

Eugene City had no representative.

Mrs. Seldon reported the union at Roseburg.

Mrs. Johnson reported the union at East Portland, which she said was almost "too little a girl" to be represented, being only a week old, but which numbered seventeen members.

Mrs. Riggs paid a graceful tribute to the pastors of Portland, who aided by their prayers and sermons, anticipating every possible means of lending their aid and influence to our cause.

Miss Willard, at this juncture, spoke of the meeting in the basement of this church, for young women, led by Miss Gordon.

Mrs. Edwards, president of the W. C. T. U. at Dayton, gave a favorable report of the same.

A "postscript" was here added by Mrs. Johnson of East Portland, acknowledging gratefully the encouragement from the pastors.

At this point Miss Willard suggested that the women wait upon all pastors and inform them of our method of work.

Miss Switzer, vice president of the union at Cheney, W. T., was called on for an account of the work in that frontier town, and she related the inspirations which "moved her heart to organize a W. C. T. U. in that place or die in the attempt," which was accomplished; also a Band of Hope, circulating a large amount of literature. She reported twelve unions organized and asked for the prayers of all christian workers for the cause in their territory.

Miss Willard reported here that she had just received the news that a most encouraging Young Ladies' Union had been organized in the basement of this church; thirty names formed the same.

A brief report of the union in Corvallis was given by a member. Miss Gordon was then introduced to the convention and made a short speech, sentiments "pure and true" boiled down, expressing her pleasure in realizing the long anticipated visit to our coast, was made glad and cheered by being instrumental in organizing the Young Ladies' Union in the place this afternoon.

A report of the committee on organization of the state W. C. T. U. was read by the secretary, Mrs. R. S. Stubbs. Moved and carried to take up the articles seriatim.

The articles of this constitution were read and thus considered. After some discussion it was moved and carried that the articles be recommitted to committee for reconsideration.

Moved and carried that the committee on organization be instructed to report a list of county and district presidents.

Moved and carried that Mrs. Seldon be substituted for Mrs. Stubbs on committee on organization and plan of work required.

The committee on credentials reported the following women entitled to seats in the convention: Mesdames W. Chattin, M. E. Stubbs, Rebecca Clawson, J. C. Cartright, Anna R. Riggs, J. G. Mendenhall, A. Holbrook, A. S. Duniway, —— Dalton, H. M. Clinton, J. G. Shindler, E. Johnson, G. R. Smith, A. E. Manning, M. H. Royal, Belle Cook, B. W. Houston, D. W. Mathews, A. Bewley, M. Allen, R. Foster; Misses Flora Ross, Ella Welch and Lottie Selden, proxy for Mrs. J. Welch. Mr. S. M. Walls was also received as a delegate from the temperance society at Cedar Mills.

Evening Session.

Miss Willard spoke to a concourse of people that filled the church almost to suffocation. Many persons of both sexes turned away from the outer edge of the crowd about the doorway, unable to hear the speaker, and returned disappointed to their homes. If there was a majority of either sex in the audience it was in favor of the men. These latter were not of the class that would be present merely out of curiosity, but were sober thinkers who wished to hear the opinions advanced and the principles set forth by this thinking woman.

Miss Willard is a clear-toned speaker, with a force and utterance betokening a fine and intimate acquaintance with the great art of oratory. Her discourse was filled with illustrations, beautifully drawn from the historic past, which shows the great depths of her mind and the extent of her reading. The objects of the union, as she outlined them, were to earnestly battle for prohibition, to go among the fallen element of humanity, and lift it up, and to gain the ballot as a simple home protection from King Alcohol.

THE LAW SUSTAINED.

Judge Stott Decides the Schneider Habeas Corpus Case.

THE $500 LICENSE DECLARED LEGAL.

No Decision on the Bond Clause because it cut no Figure in the Case—The Fine Which Lawyers make a Vital Point.

Judge Stott yesterday morning rendered the following decision in the case of H. Schneider, which sustains the ordinance passed by the common council for the licensing of bar-rooms and drinking shops and to prohibit the sale of liquor without license:

There is a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, alleging that the petitioner was unjustly deprived of his liberty by J. H. Lappeus, chief of police of the city of Portland. The chief returns that he had arrested the petitioner upon a warrant issued by the police judge of the city upon the following complaint:

[Here follow the complaint and a copy of ordinance No. [illegible], which have heretofore appeared in the columns.]

That on [illegible] said complaint and warrant Schneider was arrested, and that he refused to pay, and that he was held under such warrant and proceedings. There is a demurrer to the return, and that raises several questions. Among the first is the power of the council to pass this ordinance or any part of it. And as the charter [illegible] I might say the construction of the council [illegible] ordinary construction of the case. It not only needs [illegible] power [illegible] them. The council only have such power as is provided for in the charter. Not only that, but they have only such power delegated to them as is necessary or convenient, or as pertains to their self-government. The legislature has no right to delegate to the city, or to any city, its right to pass a general law; but should only give them the right to provide for their self government. It was contended that the legislature, being the only body that could pass laws that they had no right to delegate any power to pass any by-law or law further than was necessary for their corporate existence. But I don't think that ground was well taken. Under similar laws it follows the authority has been recognized in almost every state in the Union, constitutions not exactly like ours, but similar in effect. They have the right to give to the city the power, by express words or necessary implication, to pass such laws as are not inconsistent with the constitution or other laws of the state, or such as pertain to the self government of the city. So I think that there is no question but what the legislature has the right in this charter to give to the city the right to legislate upon subjects that pertain to their city government that would not be inconsistent with the general laws of the state. And they would have the power to give the city the right to legislate upon this question. Then comes the question whether they have done it either by express words or necessary implication. What authority has the city to pass any such an ordinance under this constitution or charter? Among the powers given the council by the charter is this provision: Subdivision 5, section 37:

5. To license and tax wharfingers; to license, tax and regulate junk dealers and dealers in second-hand merchandise; to license, tax, regulate and restrain bar-rooms, drinking shops, theatrical and other exhibitions, shows, public amusements, steamboat runners, billiard tables, or any tables where balls and cues are used, shooting galleries and bowling alleys; and to suppress bawdy houses, gaming and gambling houses, places kept for smoking opium and opium smoking, and to punish inmates of bawdy houses, houses of ill-fame, keepers of places kept for smoking opium and opium smokers.

It is contended that the power to demand this license is conferred under the authority granted in this section. There is a proviso at the end of this section, as follows:

Provided that no law or part thereof, authorizing any tribunal or officer of Multnomah county to grant tavern or grocery licenses, shall apply to persons vending liquor within the city of Portland.

Now the first section of this ordinance reads as follows:

Section 1. No person or persons shall, in this city, directly or indirectly, in person or by another sell, barter or deliver, or knowingly permit to be sold, bartered or delivered, for or on his or their account, any wine, spirituous or malt liquors, to be drunk on the premises owned or occupied by him or them, without first obtaining a license therefor in the manner hereinafter provided, and every person to whom such license shall be granted, shall pay into the city treasury the sum of $500 per annum, payable quarterly. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof before the police court, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $100, and not less than $50, or imprisoned in the city jail not less than twenty-five (25) days nor more than ninety days, or both, at the discretion of the court.

The petitioner claims that the council has no right to pass such an ordinance, and we must examine the charter to find where they obtain this power. The 5th subdivision of section 37, before quoted, after speaking of other matters that do not have anything to do with this case, reads: "To license, tax, regulate and restrain bar-rooms and drinking shops." Now, this ordinance is entitled, "an ordinance providing for licensing bar-rooms and drinking shops, and to prohibit the sale of liquor without license;" but in the body of the ordinance there is no mention of either bar-rooms or drinking shops, and it is to regulate the drinking and sale of liquor generally, so that a strict construction of that ordinance would lead to this: that if any one should deliver to another party, to be drunk on the premises, any spirituous or malt liquor he would violate this ordinance. He would violate the letter of this statute. Because it says no person shall sell, barter or deliver, or knowingly permit to be sold, bartered or delivered, any liquor to be sold or drunk on the premises by them. But this section of the charter only gives the council the right to regulate drinking shops and bar-rooms—to tax and restrain them. So far as this section is concerned they have no right to regulate the sale of liquor outside of a bar-room. It is true in this complaint they say this defendant is the keeper of, and that this ordinance should cover, drinking shops, but in the ordinance they have not undertaken to say anything about that; and under this section they would not have the right, for were it otherwise, the right to sell intoxicating liquor in the drug store or in a wholesale house would be taken away. It doesn't require any construction or interpretation to define what is a drinking shop. It means a place where liquors are to be sold to be drunk. So under this section they have a right to regulate the sale of liquors so far as it was necessary to restrain drinking shops and bar rooms. Then it is contended there is not anything about drinking shops, anything in reference whatever to drinking shops or bar rooms.

Again, under subdivision 3, section 37 of the charter, there is this provision: "To license, tax and regulate auctioneers, taverns, drummers, commercial travelers, the selling of goods by sample, peddlers and pawnbrokers, hotel runners and boarding house runners, and to define what shall constitute the same; and to license, tax and regulate and restrain all offensive trades and occupations."

Now, the petitioner contends that as section 5 undertakes to specify wherein and how the city authorities may license, tax and regulate bar rooms and drinking shops, that that confines their right only to those things mentioned. Some authorities were cited upon that question, among the rest one from New Hampshire, under a charter which gave the town the right to tax and regulate the sale of liquor to minors, to children and to Indians, they undertook to regulate the sale of liquor without license to other persons—to all persons—and the court held that they were confined in the section, taxing and restraining the sale of liquors to the persons enumerated—to minors, to children, to Indians. But in this subdivision five there is nothing said about liquor any further than it would be antecedently connected with bar-rooms and drinking shops. They might restrain them without saying anything about the license. They might pass a vesper law requiring them to close up at a certain time in the evening, and it might make various regulations without reference to drinking shops, and still not license or tax directly the sale of liquors. And I don't think that having taken away, under the proviso, all authority, from the county of Multnomah, to collect licenses within the city, that it was intended under that section to only give to the city the right to regulate, to tax, and restrain the selling of liquor in bar-rooms and drinking shops. The section was intended to license, tax and restrain all offensive trades and occupations. This word "offensive" has been changed in the charter from "obnoxious" to "offensive." In the old charter the word "obnoxious" was used in place of "offensive." At one time the council undertook to tax farmers and milkmen for selling milk without license. They undertook to tax and regulate them and prohibit their selling without license. But Judge Shattuck held that selling milk was not an obnoxious trade or occupation, and so the ordinance was declared invalid. It is contended that the word obnoxious there means something like a nuisance. That it only applies where a nuisance such as a soap factory or tan manufacture, a gunpowder, or any other manufactory that would make it unsafe or unpleasant for the city, is carried on. On the other hand it is contended that the word offensive means anything that is unlawful, or which would tend to disturb the public peace, the public morals or public health of the city. And this being a business that cannot be carried on under the law except with a license, it strikes me that offensive means everything that is unlawful as well as offensive in the meaning of the word with reference to any of the senses, like the sight, or smell, or anything of that sort; and I think the sale of liquor is such a trade or occupation as comes within this section. It was also contended that it would come within what is known as the general welfare clause, to license and regulate all such callings, trades and employments as the public good may require to be licensed and regulated, and as are not prohibited by law. But it is admitted that this ordinance imposes a tax; that the $500 per annum could be imposed merely for paying the expenses of the regulation and of issuing out and preparing the license. And the general welfare clause does not give the right to tax, but only to license and regulate, so it could not come under such section. Petitioner also contends that the provisions here with reference to the bond are unreasonable and unlawful. Decisions it is unreasonable to hold, that if created a monopoly. If this power to pass this ordinance was derived under the provisions of the general welfare clause, the court would be at liberty to declare the act unreasonable, but where it is derived from a specific grant of power, as in subdivision 5, the court would not be at liberty to declare it unreasonable; that is the written evidence of the books. This subdivision 5 of section 37 [illegible] the license and [illegible] [illegible] the public good may require to be licensed and regulated, and so [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] They could not recover a penalty of a sum larger than $100, was allowed, that the bond of an officer of the city could not be larger than $[illegible]. Now, [illegible] of having [illegible] [illegible] not only [illegible] keeping of an [illegible] house, and for the [illegible] with the provisions of this ordinance, but for the violation of any other ordinance, I am inclined to think that is directly [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]. But I am not prepared to say that the section is void because section 5 is void. Because [illegible] only pertains to the manner of getting [illegible] the bond, prescribes the bond and the form of the [illegible] and states the penalty for the violation of the [illegible]. And I am not prepared to say either as a whole [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] section 1 [illegible] that he would have a right to sell liquor without a license. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] I say in this [illegible] [illegible] that the [illegible] section 5 is void, that he would have the right [illegible] section [illegible] even if that section is invalid. There are [illegible] with the question, that where [illegible] although the applicant had complied with the part and paid the license [illegible] or would have [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the right to pass section [illegible] and [illegible] I think that the appellant [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] he would have any [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of these ordinances [illegible] of the charter [illegible] subject, except that the legislature gave this city [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and I don't think that changes the matter even if these numbers are wrong, I don't think that these numbers have any thing to do with it. The amended section is set out in full, making a complete section, and the [illegible] and [illegible] the amendment, and these sufficient, though the number might be wrong. The numbers I think do not change the effect at all.

The return showing, in my judgment, a sufficient cause for holding the petitioner, the demurrer is overruled.

Answer to the Printers' Locals.

The statement that the agent of the steamer Lurline chartered her to the printers for their excursion is unqualifiedly false. The steamer has no other agents than Mr. Kamm and J. T. Gray, her master. Mr. Kamm has not been absent at any time since May 31.

Mr. Kamm was approached by a gentleman who had been requested by the printers' committee to secure a boat, and offered $225, which was emphatically refused. The steamer Lurline alone, without a barge, has never been chartered for an excursion of that kind for less than $300. The printers' committee took the liberty of advertising the Lurline (and continued to after being refused), without consulting her owners, and attempted to "bulldoze" Mr. Kamm, who is not the kind of man to stand such treatment. As to blocking every move of the printers' committee, the committee wished preparation made to carry 1000 passengers or more. Mr. Kamm secured two large barges, and offered to take their excursion for $300, which would be but 15 cents apiece each way—which is just 2½ cents more than is charged for sheep. He was also to make a special trip for the Twenty-first infantry band, and to hold the Vancouver in readiness to assist if there should be more passengers than the other boats could carry. The proposition was refused in an extremely discourteous manner. If printers' committees are such irresponsible bodies that they can sue (of course they can be sued), it would be interesting to know by what legal slip they avoided paying the damages received by Mr. Pettyman on one of their picnics, several years ago, and how they managed to make the O. S. N. Co. pay them. Also, how they escaped paying the steamer Lurline $75, which was due her on an excursion carried for a printers' committee. We believe, though, we would rather be swindled than to be lied about. More of this, if necessary. The printers will have all they can carry, and the Lurline and McCully will run as advertised. The following has been received:

VANCOUVER, W. T., June 15.

Jacob Kamm: Sir—In reply to your telegram this morning I will say that we have given the printers of Portland the use of the public park on to-morrow, but no one can be excluded.

THE DRIVEN WELL PATENT.

PORTLAND, June 15.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

I would ask leave to add to your information, contained in article of June 12, 1883, in reply to "a reader" asking information concerning Iowa driven well case, that if there is such a decision, it is the only one against the driven well patent, and is in the face of and against the decisions of almost every circuit court of the United States, and of the supreme court also, as follows:

Andrews vs. Carman, district of New York; Andrews et al. vs. Wright, district of Minnesota; Andrews vs. Origen, southern district of New York; Andrews vs. Cross, northern district of New York; Green vs. French, district of New Jersey; Castleman vs. Jaskalla, district of Oregon; Hine vs. Wahl, district of Indiana; Hine vs. Wahl, supreme court of United States, and also Andrews et al. vs. Eames, decided February 8 by Judge Shipman, who follows the decision of the supreme court in Hine vs. Wahl, holding the reissue valid. Judge Benedict in Andrews vs. Carman, went all over the ground of the question of prior use, as also Judge Blatchford in Andrews vs. Cross, and they have been affirmed.

We understand the proprietors of Sellwood are disposing of lots in that popular townsite very fast of late and that now over 900 have been sold. This may be a positive nucleus for a suburb against which no opposition can prevail. The directors, at one of their late meetings, voted a plot of land for a school and ordered the immediate construction of a building suited for a schoolhouse, church and other public purposes. A committee was also appointed with power to devise a plan and act on constructing water works in its streets. All of these improvements are of a character to show unlimited faith in the upbuilding of the town, and it is correspondingly appreciated by the public. It is certainly plain that in no other direction is it possible to be conveyed from the heart of the city to a beautiful site in fifteen minutes, and for the nominal fare of a ferriage to a Sellwood resident; which fare of five cents is guaranteed to all such and is now being done on the beautiful City of Sellwood, which makes the ferry connection referred to. Adding to the other advantages of ownership there, as contrasted with investments elsewhere for homes, must be noted the fact that in no other direction, north, south, east or west of Portland's business center, is it possible to journey in the time taken to go to Sellwood and buy a lot for less than ten times the price Sellwood lots are selling for. We regard this as an incontrovertible argument in favor of the desirability of investment there, and it cannot be refuted or denied.

Consult the Sellwood time table and see all of this for yourselves.

THE DEMOCRATS DODGE.

Their City Convention Adjourned Till Next Saturday Night at Eight O'Clock.

The democratic city convention met at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the county court room, and was called to order by [illegible] Christie, chairman of the city central committee.

W. H. Watkinds was chosen temporary chairman and [illegible] Meade temporary secretary.

The following committee on credentials was appointed: [illegible] Norden, W. W. Davey and [illegible] [illegible].

They retired and [illegible] made the following report of delegates entitled to seats.

First ward—[illegible] Jones, A. E. Tuttle, by J. J. Gallagher, proxy, L. Weinhard, by Ben L. Norden, proxy, [illegible] Martin, by John Berry, proxy; J. J. Gallagher, [illegible] Norden, T. W. Staples and [illegible] E. Walsh and M. [illegible].

Second Ward—[illegible] Hood, A. [illegible] by L. Jones, [illegible], [illegible], Chas. [illegible] by C. C. Moore, proxy, T. [illegible] Tilden, H. W. [illegible] and J. B. [illegible] W. [illegible], proxy.

Third ward—T. J. Hackley, W. Harris, W. W. Davey, W. H. Watkinds, [illegible] Foss, T. J. [illegible] and [illegible] Scott.

The report was adopted.

On motion of [illegible] the temporary officers were made the permanent officers.

[illegible]

On motion of [illegible] the courtesy of [illegible] was extended to [illegible] Eliot on behalf of the citizens' [illegible].

After [illegible] to the convention Mr. Eliot read the resolutions of the citizens' meeting of June 12, and upon invitation addressed the members in substance as follows: "It is an unaccustomed duty, but a great pleasure that finds me for the first time, although a citizen of Portland for sixteen years, addressing a convention of the representatives of the people in one of its great parties. I regard such a representative meeting of our people, as the most honorable of relations. A great people cannot act at elections directly in mass, as in the days of Athens and Rome; hence the necessity of representative nominating conventions like this. I appear before you as one of the people to signify the interest they take in common with yourselves in the well-being, economy and order of our community, which we feel to be possibly at stake in the coming election. We are speaking in our memorial upon a theme to which doubtless every member of this convention has already given his attention, but we do this as a matter of record and to emphasize the fact that the general people feel that the issue we memorialize you concerning is the living issue of the hour." Mr. Eliot then called the attention of the convention to the party record in many cities and states, as in favor of stringent statutes, regulating and controlling the liquor traffic." In Missouri, my native state, while I was visiting there last winter, an agitation was in progress, which has culminated in putting on the statute books one of the most stringent high license and local option laws in our whole land—a law many times more severe than our present city ordinance, and this law was passed by democrats in a state where they have three-fourths majority. In Georgia, led by the governor, the people have lately enacted equally stringent laws, through measures presented and enforced by the democratic majority. I speak of this record, not as a precedent, so much as to signify the such laws are passed and their necessity is being recognized by good citizens "all over our land." The speaker referred to the fact that it had been his privilege for four years to hold office (school superintendent), in the county, by the united suffrage of all parties, and always felt he owed any influence he might have had to representing an interest, "thus lifted above party lines." "Such an interest was the present, one in which every citizen with a home, or children, or property—and every lover of the good name of Portland is concerned, and which should practically be lifted above party, by the character and dignity of the candidates of the council you name for the suffrage of the community."

ADJOURNMENT TILL SATURDAY NIGHT.

Ben Norden jumped to his feet as soon as Mr. Eliot had finished, and winking with one eye at Bill Watkinds, and with the other at Tom Stapleton, bit his lips together to suppress emotion. Then assuming dignity and the appearance of thoughtfulness and candor, said: "The sentiment of the honorable gentleman who has just preceded me is fraught with such a rious and important results that it should be well considered and fairly dealt with. The same submission was presented to the republican city convention. They considered it of such importance that the convention adjourned till next Saturday afternoon. Now, for the purpose of fully considering (Norden placed special emphasis on these words) the words which have flowed from the speaker's mouth, I move you, sir, that this convention adjourn until 8 o'clock Saturday evening."

A delegate objected saying that the convention was prepared to nominate good men and should do so at once.

Norden reminded the honest man that it would be unwise for this convention to give less consideration to the question than the republican committee had done. If they nominated now without duly considering the questions presented by the citizens' meeting, such action might militate against the interests of the grand old party these delegates represented.

The motion was then put and carried, only one voice voting no.

Visiting firemen, and in fact everybody, were loud in their praises of the efforts put forth by the ladies' coffee club of this city, to entertain our visitors and firemen generally. They not only prepared a dinner, but supper as well for a number of our visitors. They certainly deserve great credit for their action.

A GENTLEMAN IN OVERALLS.

He was a gentleman who wore overalls and carried a tin dinner pail. His clothes were ready made and his boots were not by [illegible] [illegible]. He said the journey of a mile and a half to and from his work was not trying.

"Why don't you live in the city?"

"Because, sorr," (in a rich Milesian brogue) "if I lived in the city I should have to live in a rented house. You don't know the kind of people who live in rented houses. They're an unsettled lot, all through, generally. Sights go on in crowded cities that no woman or child should see. I went to get the ern Portland to save my wife and children from seeing corruption—to own a home of my own, which I will pay for and beautify with the money other people pay out for rent. We are never settled, [illegible] night, sorr."

And he left for his little cottage in southern Portland, and was greeted with a chorus of "Here's father."

PIONEER DAY.

(Concluded from First Page.)

It is a sense of obligation and not of pleasure that prevents me from trusting your generosity to allow this explanation to stand for the whole address, and retiring at once.

After the heavy immigration of 1853, there was but slight increase of the population of Oregon territory until some time after the transition from territorial tutelage to the full dignity of statehood, which took place February 14, 1859. By the census of 1860, one year after her admission, the population of Oregon numbered a little over 52,000. Some years before that time the discovery had been made that not the extraordinary fertility of the soil of western Oregon—which was about the whole of Oregon in those days—nor the exceeding mildness of the climate, nor the perennial pasturage of the valleys, nor yet the gold mines of the southern section, would give wealth to any dweller, except in exchange for sweat of brow or brain. A voyage of adventure brought not back the golden fleece, and the argonauts no longer poured over the Sierras into California, nor overflowed her northern hills to seek fugitive fortune in Oregon. The home-builders, too—blessings on them everywhere and forever!—whose caravans, freighted with the precious burden of wife and children, and household goods, the lares and penates of a genuine Trojan race, had whitened the desert with a constantly increasing stream direct to Oregon till 1852, and with little falling off in 1853 came in smaller numbers afterward; for most of the lands in the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue river valleys, which were then and for long years supposed to be the only lands in the territory suitable for homes, had been occupied. The home-builder of Oregon was not a [illegible]. He was not in any sense an adventurer. If he sought fortune in the mines while his devoted wife worked the garden, milked the cows, and [illegible] the children, it was to enable himself and her [illegible] their dream of home. To him the seeking of [illegible] was an incident, the finding of adventure [illegible]. The home once established—the primitive [illegible] constructed, the hearthstone warmed, I as [illegible], and the kitchen provided with the few and simple necessaries to meet the few and simple wants of the pioneer family, he might go to the gold [illegible] with pick and pan, or, turning freighter and [illegible], both in one, he might deliver flour and [illegible] clothes and mining implements to the [illegible] of northern California; but wheresoever [illegible] whatsoever he did, he always felt the firm [illegible] of home beneath his feet.

[illegible] the character of the great body of the [illegible] settled in Oregon in the pioneer days; [illegible] from their letters, and other sources of information, their friends and acquaintances in the [illegible] the Rocky mountains, were advised [illegible] no longer easy to obtain or create better [illegible] in the then opening regions near [illegible], the tide of home-builders ceased to [illegible] volume into the territory. [illegible] mines of southern Oregon, limited [illegible] small area, were fully occupied [illegible] and the northwest held out no inducement to the gold-hunter, nor to the adventurer. [illegible] people of the territory, at the [illegible] together with their children [illegible], nearly the entire population [illegible] admitted into the union.

[illegible] the liberty of remarking [illegible] object of referring to [illegible] the Oregonians of 1850 are [illegible] of 1853, that the ad[illegible] the union would form a [illegible] and conspicuous landmark [illegible] period; and to aid [illegible] connected with the Indian [illegible] themselves consti[illegible] of all who were [illegible] territory at that time to the [illegible] with these, at least, who [illegible] the establishment of the [illegible] by the act of congress of [illegible] anything in the idea of [illegible] end of the pioneer period, [illegible] a pioneer of Oregon [illegible] from events that [illegible] little in the claim [illegible] is more a pioneer than an [illegible] that and the admission [illegible]. But this, as before [illegible].

[illegible] home-builders [illegible] of the immigrants to [illegible]. True, there was a [illegible] of mere adventurers, [illegible] as society became [illegible] of permanency, [illegible] of aimless, wan[illegible] whom left, while [illegible] quiet pursuits and [illegible], married, established [illegible] a purpose. So the [illegible] of Oregon pioneers [illegible] the pillars of [illegible] the infancy of the [illegible]. They are the [illegible] and constancy settled [illegible] this an American [illegible] United States gov[illegible] diplomacy to do but [illegible] by Great Britain [illegible] those whose intelli[illegible] of law and order [illegible] society finally [illegible] wholesome system of [illegible].

[illegible] too often drawn [illegible] Oregon pioneer was [illegible] toilsome and weary [illegible] the face of dangers, [illegible] desire to save his [illegible] and plant the banner [illegible] the shores of the Pacific [illegible] facts and contrary [illegible] achievements has [illegible] the judgment of the [illegible] who have indi[illegible] and so great forti[illegible] them through [illegible] the overland journey, [illegible] and sacrifices to [illegible] cheerfulness [illegible]. The truth is, and [illegible] no such thought [illegible] immigrants or of the [illegible] was accomplished. [illegible] at some of the more in[illegible] to the establishment [illegible] toward which they [illegible] than probable that [illegible] they thought only of [illegible] which they had [illegible] of which they [illegible] they were not [illegible] liberty, but [illegible] themselves in unsel[illegible] aggrandizement [illegible] of liberty and [illegible] for that form of [illegible] sway they and [illegible] blessings, we owe [illegible] our several [illegible] our own good ship, [illegible] and friends [illegible] faces to the vast [illegible] and the sun[illegible] and suffered thro' [illegible] hardships and [illegible] splendid achievement [illegible] of their migration [illegible] a country where the [illegible] civil and social institutions [illegible] upon individual freedom [illegible] to be the conquest [illegible] their primitive sab[illegible] with the stream at one [illegible] which their cabins [illegible] the foundation of city [illegible] in little groups of two, [illegible] and talking [illegible] of living where [illegible] conscience, and no [illegible] protecting virtue save [illegible] a people too few and too [illegible] their sentiments a force [illegible] of the sanctions of law, [illegible] unconsciously prepared [illegible] from which the civil [illegible] by themselves on July 5, [illegible] and the constitution and [illegible] we meet here to-day [illegible] have lived to see the [illegible] upon them by their sur[illegible] monument to com[illegible] and privations, their pa[illegible] love of justice and good [illegible] worth in all the walks of life. [illegible] speak thus in praise of [illegible] and women, for I claim no part in [illegible] the rightful heritage of their [illegible] having passed away be[illegible] to begin even the rehearsal [illegible] part on the stage of action. [illegible] in praise, loosing [illegible] of their intrepidity, [illegible] I can not conceal from my[illegible] connection of events which, [illegible] judgment and not through the [illegible] history, puts down as [illegible] the stories that place the Oregon [illegible] of patriotism far above the [illegible] in other times and countries. [illegible] and almost unknown [illegible] courage that has characterized [illegible] frontiersman to all [illegible] with no higher motive [illegible] have actuated the pi[illegible] all the other states, old and new, he was [illegible] that called upon him to [illegible] in the light of subsequent events [illegible] of the utmost importance [illegible] dominion over a vast empire. [illegible] than he knew. Entitled to the [illegible] of his descendants and those [illegible] the blessings his toils and privations [illegible] sometimes—and even at fu[illegible]—credit that is founded on no merit, [illegible] the future historian of Oregon, with [illegible] by admiration, will pronounce a [illegible].

[illegible] out the small element of gold-hunters [illegible] of reckless adventurers—classes [illegible] in number in comparison to the [illegible] of the earlier days—the pioneers were [illegible] brave. "Only the brave started, and only the strong got through," says Joaquin Miller, the [illegible] pioneer of Oregon, whose fame as poet has [illegible] as far as the English language. But strong and brave though they were—I claim those qualities for the fathers and mothers, leaving their children to wear spurs where they have won them—strong and brave though they were, and home-builders in the texture of their mental constitutions, and, as to [illegible] of them, in the definite purposes of their migration, they were not of the cultured race who love the amenities of polite society. The greater number of them were pioneers by nature and occupation as their fathers had been before them. In childhood the story of their ancestors' migrations from the east to the west, and then to the newer west was their handbook of history. Homer and Virgil, of whom few of them had ever heard, could have rehearsed no tale half so thrilling to their ears as the rarest tale of daring adventure and hair-breadth escape, which, half true and half false, ever from the throat of frontier history. They knew nothing of Hector and Achilles, but they knew of Daniel Boone, who, Lord Byron said,

"Was happiest among mortals anywhere;"

Whom civilization drove out of Pennsylvania by [illegible] starving the red deer and the black bear, and who after some years of solid comfort in his log cabin amid the wilds of Kentucky, was again pursued and overtaken by the same relentless enemy and compelled to retire into the Missouri wilderness, beyond the Mississippi; and who, even in that distant retreat, was soon forced to say to his friend and companion, according to current anecdote, "I was compelled to leave Kentucky because people came and settled so close around me I had no room to breathe. I thought when I came out here I should be allowed to live in peace; but that is all over now. A man has taken up a farm right over there, within twenty-five miles of my door." Of Boone and such as Boone most of them who founded the commonwealth of Oregon knew much more than of the great names of literature, statesmanship or arms, and their minds dwelt fondly on the exploits of the frontiersmen, whether in contests with the savages or in the chase. More familiar with the log cabin than with the palace, with the rifle than with the spindle and loom, with the saddle than with the railway, they felt cramped when the progress of empire in its westward way put restraint upon those habits of life to which they were accustomed. The picture of Boone's life drawn by Byron was but a more distinct representation of what lay unexpressed in their lives and longings:

Crime came not near him, she is not the child
Of Solitude. Health shrank not from him, for
Her home is in the rarely-trodden wild
Where if men seek her not and death be more
Their choice than life, forgive them, as beseems
By habit to what their own hearts abhor—
In cities caged. The present case in point I
Cite is that Boone lived hunting up to ninety;

And, what's still stranger, left behind a name
For which men vainly decimate the throng;
Not only famous, but of that good fame
Without which glory is but a tavern song—
Simple, serene, the antipodes of shame,
Which hate nor envy e'er could tinge with wrong
An active hermit; even in age a child of Nature,

. . . .

'Tis true he shrank from men, even of his nation,
When they built up unto his darling trees,
He moved some hundred miles off for a station
Where there were fewer houses and more ease:
The inconvenience of civilization
Is, that you neither can be pleased nor please,
But, where he met the individual man,
He showed himself as kind as mortal can.

He was not all alone; around him grew
A sylvan tribe of children of the chase,
Whose young, unwakened world was ever new;
Nor sword nor sorrow yet had left a trace
On her unwrinkled brow; nor could you view
A frown on nature's or on human face;
The free-born forest found and kept them free,
And fresh as is a torrent or a tree.

And tall, and strong, and swift of foot were they—
Beyond the dwarfing city's pale abortions,
Because their thoughts had never been the prey
Of care or gain: the green woods were their portions.
No sinking spirits told them they grew grey;
No fashion made them apes of her distortions;
Simple they were, not savage; and their rifles,
Though very true, were not yet used for trifles.

Motion was in their days, rest in their slumbers,
And cheerfulness the handmaid of their toils,
Nor yet too many nor too few their numbers;
Corruption could not make their hearts her soil;
The lust which stings, the splendor which encumbers,
With the free foresters divide no spoil:
Serene, not sullen, were the solitudes
Of this unsighing people of the woods.

Such was the picture floating vague and nebulous in the minds of many of the pioneer immigrants from their childhood. The hunt, forest and stream, cattle roaming unrestrained over the meads, freedom and action, broad lands—this was the lure they followed across the wide extended desert and through the dark forest to the Wallamet; and I know there are those present to-day whose minds dwell affectionately on the memory of that brief period, full of hardship and not without actual suffering, during which the vision was a reality. How they turned their faces and bent their steps to the mountains and prairies of eastern Oregon, as their Willamette homes were invaded by the influence of the town, and their livelihood came to depend on orderly and economical farming! Deep down, under the giving up of the homes they built at first and around which affectionate memories clustered, there was something more than the desire to make money; there was a feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction, with the pressure that came when they were overtaken by the telegraph and the railway.

A western orator, flying the American eagle in upper heavens on Independence Day, observed very near him a man with a slightly aquiline cast of countenance, which he at once recognized as that of a foreign-born individual. The stranger was paying such attention to his eloquence as indicated lively appreciation. The orator addressed him directly somewhat in this wise: "My foreign friend who sits before me would testify that even across the Atlantic the people are looking to the stars and stripes as the source of their ultimate deliverance from kingly tyranny. You left the fatherland and braved the storms of the surging seas in order that you might enjoy the blessings of liberty under the ægis of this ever-glorious old flag, did you not, my foreign friend?" "Vell, no, mein freund," answered the man with the foreign face, who had not been long in America and had a little hatchet in his breast pocket. "I can nicht dell you no lies; and to dell de drood Ich come to dis coundry to sell scheap ready-made clodings."

The orator made the same mistake that some of the eulogists of the Oregon pioneers make; nevertheless the foreign individual got naturalized, made an exemplary and enterprising citizen, served his state well in the legislature and was mayor of a city in which for a generation his children were the controlling people. The application is plain and the parallel perfect.

I have dwelt thus at length upon the character and purposes of the pioneer immigrants because it seems not well that a story—even by implication—which has its only precedent in the charming fable about "Pious Æneas," should go down unchallenged to the future historian, to cast discredit on a record that has truth enough in it to place the Oregon pioneer in the high niche to which he is justly entitled. A little band of fifty thousand people, who, after a third of a century has passed away and the population of the country has increased to more than 200,000—after the telegraph and the railway, in hands of "new comers," have come among them, revolutionizing business and changing the geography of the earth's surface—can still say that out of seven governors which the state has had, they have furnished six; an attorney general of the United States; out of twelve senators nine; out of twelve congressmen, eleven; a majority in every legislature, and nearly all the judges of the supreme and circuit courts, besides a judge of the United States court, distinguished throughout the republic, is not in need of poetic fictions to bolster up their claim to strength of character, intelligence and zeal in serving the public.

Many of the immigrants, too, were poor people before they came to Oregon, and, as they were of a race who knew not the ways of the city nor how to live unless upon a plat of land they could call their own, the same simply to better their condition in that respect—to "get a chance in the world;" and some, young and possessing education enough to make them aspire to leadership, saw in the settlement of Oregon a field for future operations—knew they could make and hold their places, no matter under what form of government. But only the pioneer missionary, Dr. Whitman, appears to have had clear views from the first of the possibilities of the northwest and its importance as a part of the United States. He and Thomas H Benton were the prophets of Oregon. The story of Whitman's far-seeing efforts to make this an American country has been so often told that it is familiar to Oregonians. Benton had as clear a vision of the future of Oregon as did Whitman. When Calhoun thought it not best to insist upon our right to the country against the claim of Great Britain, characterizing Oregon as "a God-forsaken Asiatic region," the great Missourian was swift to take up the challenge; and he was always and in every emergency, either in the United States senate or in other places, the fast friend of the Oregon pioneers. A letter written by the old "Emperor of Missouri" a year before congress passed the act establishing the territorial government, I cannot refrain from presenting in full, as it exhibits not only his love for and faith in Oregon, but his views upon a question which was destined soon to agitate the people of the territory and later to agitate the national government from the center to circumference with the shock of war:

WASHINGTON CITY, March, 1847.

My friends (for such I may call many of you from personal acquaintance, all of you from my thirty years' devotion to the interest of your country)—I think it right to make this communication to you at the present moment when the adjournment of congress, without passing the bill for your government and protection, seems to have left you in a state of abandonment by your mother country. But such is not the case. You are not abandoned! Nor will you be denied protection unless you agree to admit slavery. I, a man of the south, and a slaveholder, tell you this.

The house of representatives, as early as the middle of January, had passed the bill to give you a territorial government; and in that bill had sanctioned and legalized your provisional Organic Act, one of the clauses of which forever prohibited the existence of slavery in Oregon.

An amendment from the senate's committee, to which this bill was referred, proposed to abrogate that prohibition; and in the delays and vexations to which that amendment gave rise, the whole bill was laid upon the table and lost for the session. This will be a great disappointment to you and a real calamity, already five years without law or legal institutions for the protection of life, liberty and property, and now doomed to wait a year longer. This is a strange and anomalous condition, almost incredible to contemplate and most critical to endure! A colony of free men, 4000 miles from the metropolitan government to preserve them! But do not be alarmed or desperate. You will not be outlawed for not admitting slavery.

Your fundamental act against that institution, copied from the ordinance of 1787 (the work of the great men of the south, in the great day of the south, prohibiting slavery in a territory far less northern than yours) will not be abrogated! Nor is that the intention of the prime mover of the amendment. Upon the record the judiciary committee of the senate is the author of that amendment, but not so in fact. It is only midwife to it. Its author is the same mind that generated the "Fire brand Resolutions," of which I send you a copy, and of which the amendment is the legitimate derivation. Oregon is not the object. The most rabid propagandist of slavery cannot expect to plant it on the shores of the Pacific, in the latitude of Wisconsin and the Lake of the Woods. A home agitation, for election and disunion purposes, is all that is intended by thrusting this fire brand question into your bill as it ought to be. I promise you this in the name of the south, as well as of the north; and the event will not deceive me. In the meantime, the president will give you all the protection which existing laws can enable him to extend to you, and until congress has time to act your friends must rely upon you to continue to govern yourselves as you have heretofore done under the provisions of your own voluntary compact, and with the justice, harmony and moderation which is due to your own character and to the honor of the American name.

I send you, by Mr. Shively, a copy of the bill of the late session, both as it passed the house of representatives and as proposed to be amended in the senate, with the senate's vote upon laying it on the table and a copy of Mr. Calhoun's resolutions (posterior in date to the amendment, but nevertheless its father), also a copy of your own provisional organic act, printed by order of the senate; all of which will put you completely in possession of the proceedings of congress on your question for a territorial government, and for the protection and security of your rights.

In conclusion, I have to assure you that the same spirit which has made me the friend of Oregon for thirty years—which led me to denounce the joint occupation treaty the day it was made and to oppose its renewal in 1828, and to labor for its abrogation until it was terminated; the same spirit which led me to reveal the grand destiny of Oregon in articles written in 1818, and to support every measure for her benefit since—this same spirit still animates me and will continue to do so while I live—which I hope will be long enough to see an emporium of Asiatic commerce at the mouth of your river and a stream of Asiatic trade pouring into the valley of the Mississippi through the channel of Oregon.

Your friend and fellow-citizen,
THOMAS H. BENTON.

Mr. Benton lived to see a state constitution framed and adopted by the pioneer people of Oregon, by which the slavery question was settled in accordance with his wishes. The constitution was adopted November 7, 1857, and Benton died April 10, 1858—nearly a year prior to the admission of the state into the Union.

As the mind lingers on the pursuits and labors of pioneer days, it seems as if we were thinking of some period in the remote past—that the deeds and scenes that pass before us could not be those in which men and women still among us were the actors. The change that has come over the face of the country, the cities that have sprung up, with their palaces and colleges and churches, the noisy throng that moves and surges up and down the thoroughfares of trade, the rumble of the locomotive and shriek of the steam whistle—all call us into another age, and I the story that has been represented on the canvas is the legend of the long-lost past.

It is hard to realize that those assembled here are the same men and women whose deeds make the record found in the archives of your association. Many have, indeed, gone over to the great, silent majority, whence they sent back no word to guide us along the dark way they have trodden; but many of the very earliest immigrants are still among us with strength and vigor for further service. Many have taken their places in the progressive ranks of the new age and are still a power for our advance. [illegible] present, however, [illegible] any other man who has ever occupied a seat in the senate of the United States, and now John Bidwell of California, once a member of the house, is the only man [illegible] before him who has served in either branch of congress. [illegible] in 1841, Bidwell in 1841.

Your historic records, fellow pioneers, do not do justice to the pioneer women of Oregon. Excepting some general tributes to their noble sacrifices and patient help in the trying scenes through which the immigrants were called to pass, little has been done toward gathering up and preserving a record of their part in the drama. They are deserving of something better. You had the posts that attract general attention; theirs it was to do and suffer in comparative obscurity. But they met the trials and vicissitudes of their hard position with more than man's fortitude and patience. I do not know there ever was a life ennobled by high purpose and worthy performance but was inspired and sustained by a noble woman; but I do know the pioneer women of Oregon were felt as a sustaining power in all the struggles and privations of the early days and that many a time they bore the greater hardships themselves. It ought to be a labor of love for some capable hand to gather up the scattered materials and erect a monument to the pioneer mothers of Oregon. Year by year their ranks are decimated by the hand of death, and the task of raising a fitting monument is becoming more and more difficult, for there is no written record of their lives. In loving, virtuous unostentatious labor for the happiness of others have their lives been spent, and their story will never be told unless it is first obtained from living witnesses.

These desultory remarks are closed. The past is behind us. Around us is the busy present, demanding nerve and action; before us the future, challenging faith and hope. To live too much in the past is to die; to love the present too well is to become selfish and sordid; to expect too much of the future is to dream. But contrasting the past with the present, and noting the progress of our own times, it seems impossible that imagination can dream a dream too dazzling for realization. We owe it to ourselves and our children that there shall be no lagging behind. The world moves on, whether we will it so or not; and it will be as truthfully said hereafter of the sharp contests of this stirring period, on which we are now entering, as it was of the march across the desert, "Only the brave started, and only the strong got through."

THE PICNIC, CAMPFIRE, ETC.

At the conclusion of Mr. Hill's address adjournment was had for dinner, and for two hours the company sat about in the shade, picnic fashion. Ample provision had been made and the old time feast was thoroughly enjoyed.

At 2 o'clock Hon. J. F. Caples addressed the company in the stead of Hon. John Whiteaker, who at the last moment found it impossible to keep his engagement to give the occasional address. Although speaking upon but a few minutes' notice Mr. Caples woke the echoes and won most enthusiastic applause. Three cheers were given for big-hearted old Tom Benton, three more for the pioneer women of Oregon, and an outburst of enthusiasm culminated in three times three for the speaker.

At ten o'clock this evening a camp fire was lighted in Marion square and about 1500 people are now gathered about it talking of old times. Speeches are being made on the "free-for-all" plan and jollity is over all.

The pioneer ball, under the auspices of the society, is now in progress at Reed's opera house, but is rather slimly attended, and almost wholly by young people of the city, the pioneers preferring the outdoor air and the glare of the campfire.

At the business meeting of the society this evening about 300 applications for membership were received, and all the old officers were re-elected as follows: President, J. W. Nesmith; vice president, J. W. Grim; secretary, T. B. Odeneal; corresponding secretary, W. H. Rees; treasurer, J. M. Bacon; directors, E. M. Waite, F. X. Matthieu and Joseph Watt.

In looking upon pioneers to-day I was pleased to notice the air of prosperity which they wear. They have their reward.

THE EAST SIDE.

Democratic Convention.

For mayor	H. C. Myers
For recorder	E. O. Doud
For treasurer	F. L. Logan
For marshal	George Linnville

FOR COUNCILMEN.

First ward	H. H. Kiessling
Second ward	Fred. Kindorff
Third ward	B. F. Campbell

In response to a call, a good proportion of the democrats of East Portland, including a good sprinkling of prominent and influential citizens, assembled at the council chamber last evening for the purpose of nominating candidates for the ensuing election of city officers and for the appointment of an executive committee.

H. P. McGuire called the meeting to order, stated its object, and that the first order of business would be the appointment of a chairman.

W. T. Burney nominated H. C. Myers for chairman. Myers declined and nominated H. P. McGuire, who was elected.

On motion of Jno. DeBorst, W. T. Burney was elected secretary.

On motion of H. C. Myers, a committee on order of business was appointed, consisting of H. C. Myers, W. T. Burney and F. W. McGuire.

The committee recommended the following order of business:

First.—The election of an executive committee of five by nomination and acclamation.

Second.—Nomination of city officers by ballot in the following order: Mayor, recorder, marshal, treasurer, councilmen.

On motion, the report was adopted.

Nominations then ensued as follows:

FOR EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Gus Strube nominated Dr. C. H. Raffety.
W. W. McGuire nominated W. T. Burney.
H. C. Myers nominated John DeBorst.
Dr. C. H. Raffety nominated Gus. Strube.
H. C. Myers nominated H. S. McGuire.
The nominees were all elected by acclamation.

FOR MAYOR.

Jos. Ben. Lane nominated H. C. Myers of the third ward.

There being no other nominations the secretary, on motion, cast the ballot of the convention for H. C. Myers.

Mr. Myers thanked the meeting for the honor conferred, and stated that he had not wished nor sought the nomination, but had suffered his name to be used for the reason that there was but one candidate in the field for the mayoralty, and he thought it best for all concerned that there should be opposition. In the possibility of his election, however, he promised his best efforts in the general interest of the city. [Applause.]

FOR RECORDER.

W. T. Burney nominated A. H. McEwan, who declined.

W. T. Burney was nominated, declined, and nominated E. O. Doud.

There being no other nominations, the secretary, on motion of H. C. Myers, cast the ballot for E. O. Doud, and he was declared duly elected.

FOR MARSHAL.

Gus Strube nominated Geo. Linnville, the present incumbent.

On motion of H. C. Myers the secretary cast the ballot for Geo. Linnville and he was declared the regular nominee.

FOR TREASURER.

H. C. Myers nominated R. M. Raffety.

On motion of Wm. Daley the secretary cast the ballot for R. M. Raffety, and he was declared duly nominated for treasurer.

FOR COUNCILMEN.

On motion of J. DeBorst, a recess was taken in order to allow the representatives of the several wards to make nominations.

After recess R. M. Raffety appeared and stated he would be unable to accept the nomination for treasurer.

Nominations being in order Gus Strube nominated W. B. Welch, who was ruled out on account of not residing in the city limits.

George Linnville nominated F. L. Logan, and on motion of Joseph Ben Lane, the secretary cast the ballot in his favor, and he was declared duly nominated for treasurer.

The representatives of the several wards then presented the following nominees for councilmen:

First ward—H. H. Kiessling.
Second ward—Fred Kindorff.
Third ward—B. F. Campbell.

On motion of Joseph Ben Lane, the nominations were ratified by the convention.

On motion, adjourned.

RUNAWAY.

About noon yesterday two country teams of W. H. Payne, who resides on Columbia slough, were standing unhitched in front of Long & McCalla's fish store, on Fourth street, when they became scared at a passing wagon and flew northward. Mr. Payne was handy at the time and might have stopped them but for colliding with a small boy, causing both to go to grass. The wagon of the runaway team collided with another that was standing on the corner of Fourth and J, causing it to turn a semi-somersault and stop. The horses, however, went right along, continuing their course up Fourth street till out of sight. Payne secured another horse as soon as possible and gave chase, and shortly afterward returned with his fiery steeds, which had been stopped and held at Love's place on the slough, and were uninjured. The damages to the wagon, which were slight, considering the nature of the accident, were repaired, and the veteran teamster and his noble charger wended their way homeward as unconcernedly as though nothing had happened.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

FRIDAY, June 15.

Continued warm weather rather increases prevailing apprehensions regarding crops, although few persons will as yet admit that any damage has resulted. Rain will doubtless come in good time. General trade is rather quiet with nothing of especial interest to note.

The English wheat markets are still on the down grade, with nothing yet now visible on which to hope for early improvement. The weather in England continues fine for growing crops. The damage to crops in California is again placed at from ten to twenty per cent in several districts. Throughout the state it will be light.

Wool in slow trade. A local mill has withdrawn from the market, having secured several lots they now propose to hold back and await developments. For eastern 19 cents is still named as the very extreme. Reports of sales during the week at 20 cents can be traced to no reliable source, and it is questioned whether that figure has been paid during the season. Very little valley received as yet. Shipments to San Francisco are large, and the steamer to sail Saturday night will take a very large shipment.

Eggs selling at 25 cents, with no prospect of change until next week. Receipts have dropped off again.

Chickens rather dull of sale, and $6 is the extreme.

Receipts the past 24 hours have been 294 bbls flour, 2800 lbs mill stuff, 28 sacks potatoes, 777 lbs wool, 1516 lbs hides, 13 boxes of butter, 2491 dozen eggs, 44 boxes fruit, 200 bbls lime. Also 20,000 lbs mill stuff, 163,890 lbs wool, 4546 lbs hides from the eastern section. The Columbia took out 2000 qr sacks Corvallis, 2000 qr sacks Albany and 1195 hf sacks Standard flour, 1160 sacks (363,816 lbs) E. O. wool, 82 sacks (20,918 lbs) valley wool, 6 sacks hair, 8 cs cassimeres, 1 cs 1 bl blankets, 1 cs buggy robes, 1 bl furs, 300 cs Warren's salmon, 44 bdls hazel hoops, 671 bdls lath, 336 bdls barrel stock, 77 dry kip, 333 green 267 dry hides, 1259 sheep skins, 33 bls deer skins, 60 calf skins, $15,374 treasure.

Shipments of salmon to San Francisco for April were 4436 cs; for May, 22,039 cs, and to date for June 22,337 cs.

Shipments of salmon per Columbia were as follows: Oregon Packing Co., 1001; Jas. Hume, 2100; I X L Packing Co., 1930; Astoria Packing Co., 520; Washington Packing Co., 301; Union Packing Co., 274; J. Williams & Co., 700; W. Hume, 100; S. Elmore, 52; Thomas & Knowles, 300; Warren, 300. Total, 7050 cases.

Lyttleton, New Zealand dates, of the 1st of May, report as follows: Grain shipments for April continued with unabated vigor, but the cargoes in all cases do not represent actual business done with Europe, as very little new cargo business has been done since February. Our farmers have now parted with the bulk of their sound grain. Little or nothing has been doing in freights, owing to shippers having provided, some time ago, sufficient tonnage to carry the bulk of their purchases. Tonnage is rather scarcer than a month ago, as a number of vessels have been ordered to Calcutta, the rice ports, Pacific coast and Valparaiso. Rates to the U. K. remain at 36s@37s 6d. Rainfall for the month, 6.60 inches, being 5 inches more than for same month in preceding two years. Shipments for the past four months were 1099 tons flour, 1,731,856 bushels wheat, 140,885 bushels oats and 23,774 bushels barley.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Br ship Oberon, 1193 tons, cleared from London yesterday for this port. The Br bk Oberon, 1081 tons, has just sailed from Hull for this port. Both will be here about the same time.

The Tillie E Starbuck is at New York to repair.

The Columbia took out 661½ tons. The Queen will take out the largest cargo of the year. The bulk of cargo will be wool, which is fast filling up warehouses here.

The Umatilla leaves San Francisco Wednesday at 4 P. M., with freight only for this port.

The bktne Portland will probably be the next coaster to load.

The bktne North Bend arrived in this morning and will be up early next week.

The Leda, now at San Francisco, will receive machinery at once.

The New York Freight Market.

NEW YORK, June 16.—[Special.]—There is no special movement to note in the Clipper freight market, which, although not absolutely lifeless, is very weak, shipments being confined mainly to lots of heavy and coarse freight and from certain few shippers. The W. H. Smith is closing out and it is possible, with the exception of the Tam O'Shanter, will be the last vessel to get off this month. Rates are weak and for round lots a weight lower. Tonnage is scarce but there is no demand for California trade. Overland freight, all rail, is still inactive, but the season is at hand when a revival is looked for. Shipments the past week include 1500 cases canned goods, 275 chests milk, 1250 cases baking powder, 300 boxes soap, 290 boxes roasted coffee, 277 boxes lemons, 579 packages tobacco, 51 kegs fish, 25 boxes candles, 350 baskets wine, 1000 kegs nails, 308 cases coal oil, 750 cases castor oil, the latter via the Texas and Pacific road, which is now in the field, and takes freight either by rail or steamer, via New Orleans or Galveston. Shipments via the Sunset route show no falling off, but are equally up to all former ones.

Western Oregon.

John Prine is under arrest at Albany for setting fire to a vacant house belonging to Nimrod Price.

[illegible] Whitaker died in Benton county the 9th inst., aged 73 years. He was a native of Switzerland, and came to Oregon in 1853 from Ohio.

Word was brought into the city last evening that one of the fine twins of J. M. Brown of Silverton, aged about 9 years, had accidentally shot and fatally wounded the other. The particulars, as near as we could learn them, are these: Mrs. Brown had come to Salem with a party of friends to witness the tournament contests, and had left her boys with a neighbor. While playing around, one of them picked up an old fowling piece, and in handling it it was discharged, and the contents entered the body of the other, fatally wounding him. The messenger who brought the sad intelligence took the distracted mother back to the home where she had left her babes a few short hours before, well and happy and full of glee at their promised merry holiday.—Salem Statesman.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN
IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PHYSICIAN ON the Pacific coast in the treatment of all Chronic and Difficult Diseases of the Sexual Organs.
He will guarantee to cure any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease, if the patient follows his advice and treatment.
He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the FOLLIES OF YOUTH.
Such as Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Vitality. Nearly two-thirds of all the chronic diseases spring either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by a majority of the Medical Profession.
Persons afflicted by any form of sexual disease or weakness often delay in calling upon the proper physician through a sense of modesty, and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitution becomes corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.
Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.
Lost manhood perfectly restored.
Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail, if they are curable, and if not, he will tell you so.
Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for reply.
